TALKING ABOUT THE CORONATION CEREMONY.

LONDON, July 5.—A number of coronation rumors are current. The optimistists say King Edward will be quietly crowned six weeks hence. Rear Admiral John C. Watson who was to have represented the United States at the crowning of King Edward, returns home, however on July 12th and hopes to come back for the ceremony, the date of which he is quite unable to prognosticate.

The court authorities have been consulting the business world with the view of ascertaining public interests prior to making any definite arrangements. The proprietor of one of the largest hotels in London urged that the beginning of October would suit the populace best. He pointed out that the King could not possibly be well enough to undertake any ceremony until August, when society will be shooting in Scotland and London will be deserted.

"Gunpowder socialism" was loudly denounced and Delegate Hanson who voiced the denunciation, was warmly applauded. The convention addressed a resolution criticising the platform adopted by the National Socialists Convention held in Indianapolis in June 1901 as "inefficient, as a method of organization" and demanding a more efficient method of organization "to the end that the entire party throughout the whole nation be thoroughly protected under a uniform system of national control."

POOR EAT AT EXPENSE OF KING.

Thousands of Dwellers in the Slums Get a Square Meal.

HIS MAJESTY SENDS LETTER TO POOR.

LONDON, July 5.—Half a million of London's slum dwellers were King Edward's guests this afternoon. They were scattered in about four hundred halls, schools and parks in varying numbers, the greater number of beneficiaries being at Stepney, where no less than 45,000 enjoyed such a dinner as they seldom partake of.

At every gathering was read a message from the King, signed by his private secretary, to the poor.

This morning's bulletin announcing that King Edward is out of danger was also circulated, so that half a million of people drank His Majesty's health in no restrained enjoyment out of the coronation cups presented to each of them as a souvenir of the occasion.

The Prince and Princess of Wales traversed the metropolis from end to end in semi-state, the carriages being escorted by a detachment of the Horse Guards, and appeared at central gatherings in several districts.

The King's message is as follows:

"Buckingham Palace, 11:20 A. M. —I am commanded by the King to inform your Lordship that His Majesty and the Queen had intended visiting some of his coronation dinners today, and he deeply regrets that his illness prevents their doing so. The King has deputed members of his family to represent him at as many of these dinners as possible. I am further commanded by the King to express his hope that his guests are enjoying themselves and passing a happy day.

"(Signed) KNOLLYS."

HIS MAJESTY IS RESTING WELL

LONDON, July 5, 10:12 a. m.—The following bulletin regarding King Edward's condition was posted at Buckingham Palace at 10 o'clock this morning:

"His Majesty had another excellent night, and he is cheerful and feels much stronger. We are glad to be able to state that we consider the King now out of danger. The evening bulletin will, therefore, be discontinued.

Visits the Banquet Board and is Well Pleased.

ROYALTY GREETED BY THE SCHOLARS.

LONDON, July 5.—The Prince and Princess of Wales paid their first visit to Fulham. They entered the park of the Bishop's Palace through a triumphal arch and were received by the Mayor Fulham, Sir Thomas Lipton, and others.

Their Royal Highnesses were enthusiastically greeted by an immense band of scholars who sang "God Save the King." The Prince and Princess alighted and walked among the marques where the guests were assembled around two and one-half miles of tables, evincing the utmost interest in everything. At the head of the table in the central marque the royal party stopped and the Prince of Wales read this morning's bulletin regarding the King's health.

This was the signal for a tremendous outburst of cheering. Before leaving the Prince of Wales expressed to the Bishop of London, The Right Rev. Arthur Foley Ingram, and Sir Thomas Lipton, his great satisfaction at the completeness of the arrangements and emphasising his regret at the fact that the King was unable to be present.

This was a sample of all the other dinners, which were followed in every case by variety shows, upwards of 1,500 operatic, theatrical and music hall artists and 418 pianists giving their services for the occasion.

During the afternoon a second message from the King was read at the various gatherings, saying His Majesty was very glad to feel that they were his guests and hoping that they would all be happy and comfortable and spend a pleasant afternoon.

Accompanying the Prince and Princess of Wales were the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, the Duke and Duchess of Fife, Prince and Princess Charles of Argyle, Princess Henry of Battenberg, Prince and Princess Christian of Schlesswig-Holstein and the Duchess of Albany.

Pierce, Third Assistant Secretary of State at Washington, enunciating the view of the United States Government regarding the extent of the territorial waters and an exchange of compliments between the representatives of the two governments and Dr. Asser, the latter thanking the delegates for their valuable help and referring to the admirable example set by the two great powers in arbitrating the differences.

FIRE AT FARMINGTON DOES MUCH DAMAGE.

STOCKTON, Cal., July 5.—A fire supposed to have started from firecrackers destroyed several buildings on the main street and did $15,000 worth of damage at Farmington, about twenty-five miles east of Stockton, at 4 o'clock this morning. There is not much insurance and the loss is a heavy one to the town, which has a population of under 500.

The fire started in a two-story frame building belonging to Mrs. M. C. Drais. The flames spread rapidly, and in a short time the block, with the exception of the residence of R. M. Buckman, an unoccupied building belonging to J. M. Faulong and the residence of L. Weltz, were in flames. Today Farmington is without a store, a butcher shop or a Postoffice or telephone exchange.

Farmington has no facilities for fighting fire, but the citizens turned out en masse and confined the fire to one block.

Following is a statement of the losses and insurance:

Dyke & Buckman, loss $5,000; insurance $2,000.
C. N. Harrold, loss $2,500; insurance $1,000.
A. H. Ford, loss $2,000; no insurance.
Mrs. M. C Drais, loss $1,000.
S. I. Hall, loss $1,500; no insurance.
L. Weltz, loss $800; no insurance.

POISON MAY HAVE BEEN GIVEN HIM.

Shasta County Has a Sensational Poison Case.

DEAD MAN'S ENEMY IS NOW SUSPECTED.

REDDING, July 5.—Meager details of what promises to be a sensational poisoning case have just been brought in from Trinity county.

A miner and prospector named Bowery was found dead last Thursday in his cabin on the head waters of Coffee creek. The dead man's dog was found lifeless beside the remains of his master.

An inquest was held by the Deputy Coroner of Trinity county, but the verdict reached by the jury has not yet been received. It is said, however, that grave suspicions of poisoning have been aroused which seem to point to a former resident of Shasta county.

Trouble over mining claims is said to form the basis for the suspicions of foul play.

Bowery is a painter by trade, who makes his winter home in the Buckeye district of Shasta county. It is said that for twenty years he has been accustomed to mine and prospect in Trinity county, returning in the fall to his haunts in Shasta county.

STANDARD OIL IS TURNED DOWN

LONDON, July 5.—Replying to a question of Andrew Bonar Law, M. P., (Conservative) as to whether he could allay the anxiety of investors in the oil fields of Burmah by giving an assurance that the Standard Oil Company, whose representatives were seeking to obtain government concessions for oil lands, would not be permitted to obtain a footing in those fields, Lord George Hamilton, the Secretary of State for India, says he has ascertained that the Standard Oil Company has not obtained the prospecting license which it sought from the Indian government.

KING EDWARD MAKES APPOINTMENT

LONDON, July 5.—King Edward has signed the appointment of Lord Salisbury's principal private secretary, Schomberg McDonnell, to succeed Lord Esher, who retires from the secretaryship of His Majesty's office of works.

The Times in an editorial article on this matter says it thinks it doubtful if Lord Salisbury will try to find a new secretary and that the appointment of Mr. McDonnell cannot fail to revive the rumors of the Premier's resignation after the coronation.

BLACKSMITHS WALK OUT.

WILL NOT WORK WITH IMPORTED MACHINISTS FROM THE EAST.

OMAHA, Nebraska, July 5.—The blacksmiths and their helpers in the Union Pacific shops numbering about 875 men went on a strike this morning and joined the boiler-makers and machinists in their demands for abolition of the piece-work system.

While the walk-out is against this system, the immediate cause is the importation of new men into the machine shops.

A truce of three days which was to have ended tonight, was declared Thursday, but the blacksmiths disregarded it with the arrival of a new detachment of non-union men last night.

HEAD MYSTERY STILL UNSOLVED.

Berkeley Officials Are Unable to Fathom the Secret Surrounding Finding of a Man's Head.

BERKELEY, July 5.—Mystery still surrounds the human skull which was found late yesterday afternoon at La Loma, the hillside home of Captain R. Thomas.

Up to noon today no trace of a body could be found, and the authorities are beginning to become skeptical as to whether the body is there to be found.

Wallace F. Turner, the young man who, with a party of picnickers, first discovered the head, can give the officers no clue other than an account of the place and manner in which the ghastly member was found.

The authorities in Berkeley are inclined to doubt the theory that foul play has been done.

Dr. George B. Hoagland persists in his statement that the work was not that of a medical student. The head was cut from the body at the juncture of the neck and shoulders. The jaw has been hacked and sawed in a way that no medical student would think of doing. In addition to this, no medical student, says Dr. Hoagland, would think of cutting the head from the body for purposes of dissection.

Despite the doctor's statement, however, the general impression is that the head was cast away by some student. A large number of students at the State University are taking Introductory courses in human anatomy who know absolutely nothing of scientific dissection. In the opinion of Dr. Hoagland, the head has been lying in the hills for at least six or seven weeks. This being so, it would seem probable that some student cramming up for his final examinations obtained the head to assist him in understanding the technical discussions of his texts.

The top of the head was sawed off, leaving the brain exposed, and yet no attempt was made at further dissection. The neck, the most fruitful field for the dissector, was taken from the body in its entirety, and yet no attempt was made at an internal examination of its structure.

Moreover, says Dr. Hoagland, if it is merely the work of some student, where is the body? It is very hard to obtain bodies for dissection, and it would be almost impossible to obtain a head without the body.

And thus the matter stands. Whether murder has been committed, or whether some bungling student, becoming frightened at his work, has thrown the head away, no one can say.

Evidence of the use of preservatives on the head makes the latter view at the present time the more reasonable.

If, however, foul play has been done, and the murderer has concealed the body and hacked and sawed the victim's head to prevent identification, his work has been well done.

In the opinion of Deputy Coroner Streightif, identification is now impossible. The ears have sunk into the head; the victim's nose—evidently a prominent one—is now flattened.

The age of the man is entirely problematical, and can be guessed only from his thick, brown hair.

At the time of his death the deceased wore a straggling brown moustache and a week's growth of beard.

Coroner Mehrmann is away on his vacation, and Deputy Coroner Streightif could not state as to whether or not an inquest would be held. Meanwhile the head lies in the Branch Morgue, the mute witness either of a dastardly crime or of some student's criminal negligence.

LORD SALISBURY WILL RETIRE.

WILL GO OUT OF OFFICE AS SOON AS THE CORONATION IS OVER.

LONDON, July 5.—At the earliest possible moment Lord Salisbury contemplates retiring from public life.

But that severance from the affairs of the empire which he has so long administered is not likely to come until after the coronation, and it may possibly be still further delayed by now unseen reasons of State or politics.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 5.—A special train carrying President Roosevelt and party from Pittsburg reached Harrisburg at 9:35 this morning, en route to Oyster Bay, L. I. During the ten minutes' wait at the Union Station to change engines and crews the President and Attorney General Knox walked up and down the platform. A party of secret service men carefully guarded the President and Mr. Knox from the time they left the train until it started East. Mr. Knox left the party here and took a train for Washington.

LANCASTER, Pa., July 5.—Awaiting the train here was a large crowd who set up a great cheer as the President appeared on the car platform, in response to their calls for "Teddy." He acknowledged the greeting and remarked that he would not make a speech because all he had to say he said yesterday. He then went inside the car, but the cheering was kept up and he was forced to come out again and speak briefly.

Senator Fraser was a native of Nova Scotia and was in the sixty-ninth year of his age. He was one of the pioneers of California and, indeed, spent the greater part of his life here. He was especially well known in El Dorado county, where for years he was engaged in mining. He was a staunch Republican and was closely identified with the party from the earliest days of its existence. He served the party and the people of his vicinity as a member of the Assembly, as also in the State Senate, and at one time held an exalted position in the State Library. The Senator's death was regretted by many friends.

AMERICANS HONOR FLAG ABROAD

FOURTH OF JULY IS WELL KEPT ON THE ISLAND OF CUBA.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Americans in Havana and elsewhere, in the island, celebrated the Fourth with a great show of patriotism, says a Havana dispatch to the Tribune. Only an order from the Mayor prevented a display of fireworks. The feature of the day was a reception given by the American Club, which was attended by the most select society of the city. The entire American legation was present. Several prominent members of the Cuban Congress attended with Cuban officials.

The President was expected till the last minute, when he sent a note expressing great regret that "many occupations deprive me of the pleasure of assisting." A dispatch telling of President Roosevelt's speech was heartily cheered by Cubans and Americans alike. The reception ended with "Dixie" and the National hymn.

QUIET AMONG THE MINERS.

STRIKERS DO NOT SEEM TO BE MAKING ANY PROGRESS.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 5.—The movement of coal cars along the railroads and the unusual activity about several of the collieries in the region indicate to the strikers that an effort is to be made in a few days to start work at some of the collieries. The operators assert that they have sufficient men under engagement to man several of the collieries. In the Hazelton region the Pardees areexpected to mass men at the Barwood colliery, which, being on the outskirts of this region, is in less danger of attack than a mine in the heart of the district and the coal can be shipped from it without being sent past any mining village.

In the Wyoming region all indications point to a resumption of work at the Nanticoke No. 5 colliery of the Skehanna Coal Company.

CHAMBERLAIN TELLS OF CAPE COLONY

LONDON, July 5.—The reply of the Colonial Secretary, Joseph Chamberlain, to the petition for the suspension of the constitution of Cape Town was published in a parliamentary paper this evening. It says there is no precedent for the suspension of the constitution of a responsibly governed colony. The suspension should be effected only by an act of the Imperial Parliament, and the Government believes such a step is not called for unless it is proven that the constitution is a positive danger to the colony's peace or that a great majority of whites desire that the authority be completely transferred to the Imperial Government. Such a desire could only be constitutionally expressed by a resolution of the Cape Parliament.

STRANGE STORY OF BAND OF ROBBERS

MADRID, July 5.—A story is published in the newspapers here to the effect that eighty boatloads of robbers attacked the Spanish line steamer Alfonso XIII from Havana for Corunna, Spain, while she was aground at Cape Carasford, Florida. The robbers according to the newspapers became so menacing that the captain of the steamer ordered his crew to fire on them. The Alfonso XIII eventually floated and steamed away.

NOTICE.

On Monday, July 7th, the Louisville Restaurant will pass into the hands of new proprietors, and with it my best wishes and good will. I earnestly request that all parties or firms holding accounts against me will present the same at their earliest convenience. Thanking my patrons for their kind patronage, respectfully,

JOHN SLAVICH.

WENT THROUGH PERSIA.

LONDON, July 5.—Private advices from Teheran, Persia, under date of June 13, announce the return of Lloyd Griscom, the United States Minister to Persia and Mrs. Griscom from a 1,000 mile ride on horseback through Central and West Central Persia. The trip was taken to secure information with the view of building up American commerce in Persia. The great Persian trade routes, the Karun river, and the old highway from Teheran to Bagdad, were closely investigated.

COLONIALS DO LITTLE WORK.

DO NOT SEEM TO MAKE MUCH PROGRESS IN MEETING.

LONDON, July 5.—After two meetings the Colonial Premiers did not get much further (to quote one member) nor does there seem to be a prospect of reaching any conclusions in the immediate future. The question of imperial defense was put up first as being the least argumentative, but even here difficulties have arisen. Sir Wilfred Laurier the Premier of Canada and Sir John Gordon Sprigg, the Prime Minister of Australia, and Richard J. Redden, Prime Minister of New Zealand, as to what the colonies ought to do. Mr. Seddon is being constantly employed as spokesman in and out of the councils and this has given rise to no little jealousy among his brother premiers.

Canadian circles openly express dissatisfaction and declare that Sir Wilfred Laurier is not being treated with the deference due a man whose imperial statesmanship is so universally admired. The elaborate manner in which Sir Wilfred's forthcoming reception in Paris has been heralded in the English press, was to no little extent due to a desire to emphasize Canadian disgruntlement.

The decision of the British Cabinet not to suspend Cape Colony's constitution is taken to be a serious blow to Lord Milner's prestige. The latter openly opposed the premier and Sir John's victory is not likely to improve relations which are already strained.

JOHN SLAVICH SELLS OUT THE LOUISVILLE

The Louisville Restaurant, 1071 Broadway, has changed hands. It passes from the ownership of John Slavich to that of Charles A. Burgh and S. R. Break.

This news will be a surprise to hundreds of people in this city, and the surprise will be coupled with regret, because Mr. Slavich was appreciated not alone for his skill as a restaurateur but also as a genial friend and an upright and enterprising citizen.

Mr. Slavich has been a resident of Oakland for so many years, and had attained to such distinction as a caterer, that there are few people who like to be denominated good livers who have not been regaled around his board. There was nothing which a well-stocked cuisine should contain which could not be had for the call at the Louisville under John Slavich's management. For a fast or a feast, everything was available and was served in a manner which completed the pleasure of the patron. While good fellowship always prevailed at these gatherings, no suggestion of indiscretion ever attached to them or to the place.

Mr. Slavich needs rest. He can afford to take it, and, following him into temporary relaxation from the cares of business will be the heartiest wishes of hosts of friends.

NAMES SUGGESTED TO SETTLE CLAIM

ROME, July 5.—In view of the possibility of The Hague international tribunal reporting that arbitrators of a neutral country be chosen to settle the question between the United States and Mexico regarding the Pius claim, the following names have been suggested:

Signor Zanardelli, the Italian Premier; the Italian Embassador to Austria Hungary, Count Nigra; the Italian Embassador to France, Count Tornielli; the President of the Senate, Signor Saracco; the President of the Chamber, Signor Biancheri, and Senators Villeri, Pagano and Viscount Venosta. The latter were chosen by King Victor Emanuel to study the Anglo-Brazilian dispute regarding the boundary of British Guiana, in which His Majesty is arbitrator.

The Pius claim (amounting to about $1,000,000) has been pending about a third of a century. It involves a dispute between the Catholic Church in California and the Government of Mexico as to the liability of the latter for the interest on certain church lands which the Mexican Government undertook to hold as trustees for the church.

The passengers were compelled to get off the cars and walk back on the track 300 feet to the nearest station.

MANIAC IN COLLEGE TOWN

BERKELEY, July 5.—There is a maniac at large in the western part of this city who has a murderous instinct, and a number of men are trying to run him down to prevent him from shedding innocent blood.

This morning he made a murderous assault upon John Stevens, an attendant in the meat market of William Pfaff. He seized a butcher knife which lay on the block and made a vicious lunge at the attendant, which, however, was dodged, but which drove Stevens into a back room.

Pfaff appeared on the scene and finally, with Stevens' assistance, drove the maniac from the place. Before the fellow could be captured or identified he disappeared in West Berkeley.

TOOK BULLET TO SAVE CHILD

NEW YORK, July 5.—Furious that the girl to whom he had once been engaged should care for another, Isidor Luckino, a handsome Italian, sought out his old time sweetheart, Ganofra Canosino, a dark-eyed Italian girl, 19 years old, living on the floor beneath him, drew a revolver and fired several times.

The girl ran screaming about the room.

The mother sprang forward and threw herself between Luckino and the girl, just in time to receive the last bullet in the abdomen.

Luckino was pursued and finally arrested.

PEOPLE KILLED IN CHICAGO BY FIREWORKS

CHICAGO, July 5.—Three persons were killed and more than one hundred injured in the celebration of this year's Fourth of July in Chicago. Of these, all the killed received the fatal wounds from fire arms, while twenty-two others were injured by guns and stray bullets.

The desire to have some unique machine with which to emphasize their enthusiasm led to the injury of three persons, while the cannon-cracker added fifty more to the list.

A number of men were arrested for discharging fire arms in the city limits. Fifty arrests were made on the West Side alone.

BRYAN IS THE GREATEST GYMNAST IN POLITICS.

A Protean Artist When it Comes to Riding Popular Fads and Changing Front.

EDITOR TRIBUNE:—A petty justice and police court lawyer. A lightning change faction fighter. A small potato Congressman. This would seem to be poor material from which to evolve a marshal for millions, a political pioneer, a man of marvelous magnetism and a searchlight orator, and yet this has been done, and William Jennings Bryan is the man.

Some believe him to be dead politically, but in his party no name has such magic for the masses, and time will tell that this man is to be a history hero. Not a statesman, for statesmen are patriots. It is more than probable that he will never rule, but it is not at all certain that he may not approximate the ruin of this country.

THE GLAMOR OF PERSONALITY.

Among our prominent men Bryan is peculiar in having an unknown history. He has written or inspired the life sketches of himself that are extant and his delightful dalliance with his visitors, the geniality of his great genius, by which he allures men to follow him—these and many other gifts and graces have made even his political enemies into his personal friends, excepting a very few who have never really known the champion of free coinage.

The writer has so felt the magic of the man that even now, with time, politics and position to push them apart, he scarcely feels it possible to tell the plain truth about him, even when he feels it to be a patriotic duty.

MAKES MONEY ALL THE TIME.

Bryan owns one paper and has stock in another but his editorial rooms are in hotels all over the United States.

He captured a pair of shoulder straps and soldiered in Washington, using his best weapon, the tongue.

He owns a farm, but he is not and never has been a tiller of the soil, but as a farmer of the farmers he is the greatest farmer on earth.

He is the historian of his own battles and the hero of his own stories.

He is probably the only man who ever ran for office and succeeded in collecting cash from local committees in charge of his campaigns for speeches in advocacy of his own election.

Whether elected or defeated, he made money all the time.

BRYAN WAS NEVER STRONGER.

He never was so strong as he is today, and Hill, Cleveland, Carmack and Watterson are puny pigmies in the eyes of the Democratic hosts, compared with Bryan, and the next National Democratic Convention will prove this fact.

Now that the struggle for supremacy in Democracy is on between the peanut politician, Hill, the stuffed prophet Cleveland, the cantankerous Watterson and the bounding Bryan, we who are Republicans would like to know the true history of the one who now bestrides the Democratic donkey, and briefly told you have it here:

RESURGAM BRYAN IMPERATOR.

In all new States there is a halo about the head of the pioneer and his sons. William Jennings Bryan had this advantage in Illinois, but the taint of treason is a serious thing in that State, and the war record of the elder Bryan was not the only flaw in the family fame, hence Bryan became a Nebraskan.

It was a very modest beginning that Bryan made in the prairie town of Lincoln. He was the junior member of his law firm, and it is said that he never conducted a case in anything higher than a justice's court. Even now a back suite of rooms in a third-rate office building on a side street attracts clients by the magic name of Bryan, displayed in second place, just as it was before conventions heard of him.

MADE A SHREWD BEGINNING.

Shrewdly enough, he formed a partnership with a Republican of more than ordinary ability, and the new firm soon obtained the business of the Missouri Pacific Railway, a great corporation that operated a very unimportant branch that terminated in this little city.

But Lincoln is a railroad town, and from it lines radiate like spokes from a hub. It is surrounded by a productive prairie, and the farmers of this section nominated for Congress a very prominent Grange officer, Allan Root. The regular Republican nominee was also a leading "anti-monopolist," William J. Connell, and although the district contained but few Democratic voters the railway managers were greatly alarmed over the anti-monopoly agitation and when Bryan was nominated they put money, men and brains at work for him, and he was elected by a large plurality.

A CORPORATION CORMORANT.

This was his first official position, and the only civil one he ever held. It was, in short, the railway attorney who was railroaded into office over the farmer candidate of the farmers. The latter had been a public servant and a model one, and the maker of a model farm.

Bryan was branded by his opponents as a "corporation cormorant," and when he was pet-named "the boy orator of the Platte," the response was, "Yes, he is like that river—too shallow for any use and a mile wide at the mouth."

At the expiration of his first term Mr. Bryan was re-elected, but his margin was so slight (140 votes) that at the end of the term he refused a renomination and ever since then a Republican has been sent to Congress from his district.

A BRITISH FREE TRADER.

Bryan's Congressional record is conspicuous for the English fad of free trade and also for the fact that the large wool interests of Nebraska were sacrificed, while its competitor, cotton, which is not grown in the State, was untouched. Sheep nearly disappeared from the western ranges, and a thriving industry was ruined.

One appropriation was secured by Mr. Bryan, and it was sufficient to place an elevator in the government building in Omaha, and when it was constructed a German-silver plate was conspicuously displayed thereon, giving full glory to the man who secured the munificent (?) gift from the government. This plate was there until Mr. Bryan was a nominee for the Presidency, when it was removed, owing to remarks that it originated.

DODGED A STRIKE ISSUE.

Although the government was very thoroughly Democratic when Bryan was in the House, it is said that he never was the author of a bill that became a law.

When Cleveland was using United States troops against the railway rioters in Chicago, Congressman Bell of Colorado introduced a resolution favoring the men on strike. Mr. Bryan had then an opportunity unparaleled, but he hurriedly left the Capitol.

Nebraska has never had but one prominent Democratic daily, and this, in the hands of an inexperienced young man, was rapidly absorbing his fortune, when suddenly it changed from gold to silver, and Mr. Bryan's name appeared on the editorial page. Current gossip, which subsequent facts confirmed, said that the Silver Kings had propped the tottering organ with several thousand dollars and placed the stock in the editor's name. The management of the paper did not change, but 16 to 1 then became Mr. Bryan's rallying cry.

NEGOTIATES STRANGE ALLIANCES.

Nebraska is overwhelmingly Republican, but there are two great and hostile industrial interests—the farmers and the railway forces. It remained for Mr. Bryan to unite these forces for his support. Many shrewd political leaders had tried to do this, but the difficulties were too great to be overcome, but Bryan achieved it, and what was still more wonderful, he used a giant force of that time, the A. P. A.; and not content with the mixing of industrial oil and water, he took religious opposites and forced them to do his bidding, for it was Catholic Irishmen, under the direction of Constantine J. Smythe, a national officer of the great Roman Catholic Society of Hibernians, that led the famous column of Bryan shouters that stampeded the Chicago Convention.

NEBRASKA BRYAN CRAZY.

It was not so much adherence to gold, as rebellion against the King so quickly crowned, that caused more than half of the famous Democrats of Nebraska to organize their State Convention in opposition to Bryan, and it was not so much a desire to favor the silver mine owner as to follow the conquering banner of a political Napoleon, that made the Populists rush in a frantic mass to his support, while Silver Republicans and Silver Democrats vied with them in laudation of the new popular hero, until Nebraska was Bryan crazy, and the disease spread like the plague in India.

BRYAN FIGURES AS A BOLTER.

The bolting delegation from Nebraska became the dominating one in the Chicago Convention. And this Napoleon, defeated overwhelmingly in the following election by McKinley, the greater Napoleon, returned from his Elba to find his legions at Kansas City as wild over their hero as were the veterans of Napoleon's campaigns when their old commander summoned them to battle for his selfish ambition, and like the dictator of Europe, Bryan went to his Waterloo with a magnificent army.

Napoleon slaughtered millions of men, imprisoned the Pope and placed kingdoms and empires on the rouge et noir of his great battles, and so with Bryan; no act is too radical for his ambition. His daily, the World-Herald, supported an entire county and city ticket of Republicans, elected them, and sent his own Democratic ticket down to defeat, simply because his enemies had captured a convention. The Jacksonian Club of Nebraska at this time denounced his paper as an "ingrate" and "the organ of the dervishes (name for A. P. A.'s) and defaulters." Both State and city had been looted by thieving treasurers and their pals, and some of this money was traced to the journal in question.

NEBRASKA REPUDIATES BRYANISM.

In the fall of 1898 Nebraska went Republican. The preceding "demi-pop" Legislature had secured a two-thirds majority by ousting members who were clearly elected and on technicalities, or without, they were excluded, and then they attempted to change the constitution and reorganize the State Supreme Court by a recount of ballots in which ballot manipulators were employed to falsify the vote that had been cast on the amendment and officially returned. They also deprived Republican cities of home rule by legislating out of office their fire and police officials, and appointing them by the Populist Governor from the lower ranks of his party.

WHY BRYAN WAS DEFEATED.

These high-handed outrages aroused the public, and Bryan's supreme energy and great eloquence did not stop the people from repudiating at the polls the crimes of the party of which Bryan was and is the chief.

The result was the election to the United States Senate of a Republican, Mr. Hayward, whose death made it possible for the Populist Governor to send back the last incumbent, a Populist, Allen.

The defeat of Bryanism in the election of '98 was partly due to the Third Nebraska, the regiment of which Bryan became Colonel.

DOES POLITICS IN UNIFORM.

Nebraska had filled her infantry quota, and was called to furnish a small force of artillery and cavalry, but instead of obeying orders another infantry regiment was recruited. A famous Civil War General, aided by other veterans of that war, quickly organized the battalions, but it was offered to the government with Bryan for its commander. This coup de etat astonished the authorities at Washington, Bryan never having served even as a militia private, and knowing nothing whatever about military science.

Of course, a refusal to commission Bryan would be regarded as revengeful, and exceedingly small politics, and so he and his regiment were accepted, and it proved to be a serious boomerang for Bryan and his friends, who thus displaced a worthy Democratic candidate for the eagles of a Colonelcy.

LOSES HIS HOME PRECINCT.

It is well known that Bryan as a Presidential candidate failed to carry his own precinct, ward, city and county, but he did carry his State twice—once for President and once on State issues.

In the Nebraska campaign which sent two Republicans, Millard and Deltrich, to the United States Senate, Bryan received another defeat, for the Senatorial toga was then his objective.

The very brief, but exceedingly active, career of this man is sufficient to demonstrate that he is dangerous. Like Napoleon, he became a demi-god, and King Cotton, Tammany's Tigers, the cow-boys of the West, and millions among the masses worship him today. The history of the little Corsican may be repeated upon American soil if sufficient power ever comes within the grasp of this Imperial Bryan.

To be the head of the Government—no, to be THE Government—is the ambition of this man.

GLORIFIES TAMMANY HALL.

Bryan said: "Great is Tammany and Croker is its prophet," and his submission to this octopus of greed and crime is one item in proof of the unprincipled subserviency of Bryan's struggle for power.

Bryan's never ceasing denunciation of Democrats as traitors if they differ from him should be seen in the light of his own advocacy of dozens of Republican candidates and the defeat of their opponents, merely because the faction that controlled the Democratic Convention of that day was not Bryanite.

In the Hayward Senatorial campaign he secretly conspired with Senator Allen, the Nebraska Governor, and the Supreme Judge of Nebraska to elect a Republican to the United States Senate who was personally friendly to Mr. Bryan, and he advised his Populist friends in the Legislature to support this friend, Mr. Rosewater.

IS A GOOD ADVERTISER.

Mr. Bryan keeps his personality constantly before the public, and he is today beyond question the foremost Democrat in the United States. He has more brains than Cleveland and his Cabinet thrown in, and this is not saying much for Bryan. He has ideas and words and wit, with more courage than all the Democratic leaders combined. His audacity is simply startling. And he has what is most necessary to success in a politician of his school, viz: no regard for public morals when they bar the way to personal success.

HAS ABANDONED SILVER.

He has already abandoned silver as the battle cry, and hereafter the yell of his cohorts will be Bryan, simply Bryan. And his platform may be a mile long, but one word will hold it all—that word is Bryan.

"This way for Billy Bryan," was the ear-splitting shout when the banners were torn up and the procession of howling demons began their wild orgie at the Convention that first nominated Bryan, and this is the name that will again resound, and louder than ever. Bryan is a very live corpse, and is in full control of the Democratic machine.

If I were a pessimist I would say that he might become the Maximillian of the Great American Empire.

The bayonets of a European Empire have supported one American Emperor, and history may repeat itself, and the scale may be multiplied a thousand fold. Forewarned is forearmed.

Safe From Summer Complaints

All mammas, and papas too for that matter, dread the heat of summer with it's danger for the little folks, especially the babies. It is simply heart-breaking to read year after year about the great death rate among children caused by the summer's heat. Yet it is easy to protect the infants against all summer complaints, because we know that all these fearful perils have their beginning in stomach and bowel troubles, and we have a perfect family medicine that will keep the delicate machinery in a child's body clean, regular and in healthy working order in the hottest weather—CASCARETS Candy Cathartic. The plump, bouncing, crowing baby shown here is a CASCARET baby. He feels that way winter and summer. Nursing mammas take a CASCARET at bedtime, and it makes their mother's milk mildly purgative and keeps the baby just right. Older children like to take the fragrant, sweet little candy tablet, and are safe from colic, gripes, diarrhoea, summer rash, prickly heat and all the mean troubles that summer brings with it.

OUR CELEBRATION.

Last year, on the Pacific Coast, there was no such observance of July 4th as that which took place in Oakland.

In the observance of the great national holiday here yesterday, the achievement of a year ago was repeated.

In comparison with it, those at Los Angeles and San Francisco, paled into insignificance.

Thousands of people came from San Francisco to spend the day and the evening here where there was something to delight the eye, charm the ear and, at the same time, keep at white heat the spirit and principle of patriotism and loyalty.

Oakland people did not go abroad to spend the day as used to be the case. They remained at home, spent their money at home and helped make the celebration a success.

Fifty-one hundred dollars was spent in getting up the celebration and all of that, save a few hundred, was put in circulation here in Oakland.

Thousands of people from the bay and interior cities came in at all hours of the day and were among the last loiterers to retire from the gorgeously decorated streets at night.

These spent money for refreshments, sustenance, fireworks, and carnival features of all kinds. This money found its way into the pockets of local business men.

From early morning until late at night, there was an incessant explosion of blank-cartridges, fire crackers and bombs. In some instances, individual purchases of this kind represented an outlay of $100. In this line, alone, not fewer than $20,000 could have changed hands between buyer and seller throughout the city.

Until the present renaissance in the matter of holding an annual celebration of July 4th in Oakland nearly all this money went to merchants in other places. Every cent so expended enriched, by so much, each recipient and conversely took so much out of the money in this city.

From whatever standpoint, therefore, the celebration may be viewed, the celebration was a success. It is meet, therefore, that credit should be given to those who took the initiative and brought about such grand results. Primarily, the credit for the display is due to the Merchants' Exchange. Several months ago, there was a doubt as to whether the people of this city could be depended upon to furnish the means to make possible the holding of a celebration after the liberal purse they subscribed last year. There were some members who held that the people would contribute as they had contributed before. Then a vote was taken as to whether or not a celebration should be held. Every vote was on the affirmative of the proposition. Then the Exchange went to work. It called to its assistance representative citizens of all classes. These also went to work. Both worked jointly and harmoniously, with what result everybody knows.

To these, therefore and, in special manner to the Merchants' Exchange, are due the thanks of every citizen and there is no person who does not extend his thanks with extreme heartiness and good will.

One year hence, there will be another Fourth of July and another celebration which under the same auspices will be also worthy of praise.

THE STATE UNIVERSITY.

In broadening the field of its activities touching practical utilities the State University is enlarging the sphere of its usefulness in a direction that sound judgment must commend. One does not need to decry mental and ethical culture to appreciate the value of instruction in those branches which lie at the root of success in the industrial arts. It is well to be taught how to live and how to think, but it is also well to be taught how to make a living and how to apply the thought. The University not only aims to make people wiser and better, but it endeavors to make them more competent in the affairs of life and more potent factors in the progress of civilization.

It is not unusual to hear scoffs directed at the University because its savants devote time to the analysis of soils and study to the growth and culture of forage plants; to hear it derided because it extends its researches into the habits and propogation of parasitic insect life and the origin of diseases of the vine and the influence of climate and soil on vegetation. But these sneers come from the shallow and the unthinking. That is the way the University educates the masses by teaching a more scientific and prosperous agriculture. It is instructing the whole State in the field of practical industry. It is constantly collating and disseminating valuable information regarding forestry, husbandry, irrigation, mineralogy and the various activities which make California great and rich and prosperous. The few students at the College of Agriculture count for little in measuring the University's usefulness in the field of practical endeavor; the fruits of its investigations are shared in by hundreds of thousands who never see the halls at Berkeley.

That the University is elevating the standard of our schools is beyond question. It is exercising an influence as far reaching as it is subtle on intellectual development. This influence cannot be measured by counting the students enrolled in its schools. They indicate something, it is true, but they are mere indications after all.

While it is a just cause for pride that the attendance has grown to such enormous proportions, the greatest cause for pride given by the University is the impress it is making on the thought and industry of the day; the intellectual, moral and physical development of the State is the stamp of its coin which is enriching the masses with an enduring heritage. Twenty years ago no one dreamed that the University would be what it is today. Ten years ago only the boldest imagined it. What will it be twenty years hence? What is not possible of it when it has, like Oxford, a thousand years of glorious history? It can never be the classical institution that Oxford is because it is laid on different lines; but it has developed its capacity to grow into the very fibre of the people and become an integral part of the entire social fabric.

Stockton and Visalia unite in saying Fresno is not so many. The Visalia Times says Fresno has a "swelled head" and the Stockton Mail says amen. Perhaps, but Fresno is on the map just the same. If Visalia had shown the same spirit twenty years ago that has actuated Fresno, Visalia would today be a city of 12,000 or 15,000 inhabitants. Fresno may have a swelled head, but it has push, energy and enterprise. It is a town that does things and keeps well to the front of the procession. Some towns haven't energy enough to swell up anywhere.

GONE TO JOIN THE BISON.

The Florida Alligators Nearly Exterminated by Hunters.

Persons who visited Florida a few years ago and saw the rivers, swamps and bayous literally teeming with countless thousands of alligators will be surprised to learn that these large reptiles are fast becoming extinct. The constant and wholesale warfare that has been waged against them has thinned them out so completely that, unless a halt is soon called, their total extermination is only a matter of time. While they were formerly numerous as far north as Georgia, they have gradually become extinct until now they are found in great numbers only along the coast line of the extreme Southern States. In Florida they are practically extinct, with the exception of Manatee, Lee De Soto and Dade counties. In the Everglades the species have probably been more numerous than in any other portion of the world, for the reason that it has been well-nigh impossible to get to them. In this almost impregnable swamp nature has defended them so well that if a hunter succeeded in penetrating it and killing his game he was frequently unable to secure it.

It was not until the hide of the saurian became a factor of commerce that its extermination began in earnest. The skins, when tanned, make excellent leather for the manufacture of such articles as trunks, traveling bags, purses, pocketbooks and all kinds of leather novelties. Books are also bound with it, and it is even utilized for upholstering chairs. Dade county, on the east coast of Florida, sends to market about 50,000 skins annually, while the number from the counties on the west coast reaches fully 125,000 each year. There is one firm in New Orleans that handles over 500,000 skins annually.

In addition to the wholesale slaughter of large alligators for commercial purposes, a feature of recent development is the preparation of young ones for the summer trade. Dealers pay $15 a hundred for the little reptiles while they are from 5 to 10 inches in length. They are disemboweled, pickled in a preserving solution, stiffened by the insertion of wires into their bodies, stuffed with sawdust and then varnished. They are mounted on pin cushions, pin and jewelry trays, paper weights, etc., and retailed at an average price of 50 cents each. One firm in Florida sells every winter thousands of these little stuffed "gators" to tourists, and as many more thousands every summer at Asbury Park and other Northern resorts.

In addition to being preyed upon by the curio hunter, the young alligator is also beset by birds of prey and large fish. It is even devoured in great numbers by the hardened males of its own species, so that altogether its young existence is extremely precarious. It is falling by the wayside at such an alarming rate that the future of its kind is in serious jeopardy.

The saurian lives to a ripe old age, ranging from 100 to 150 years. They generally travel in groups, and the hunter who bags one looks around for others and nearly always finds them. There are seldom less than three or four together, and sometimes as many as fifty.

Since the skins of the alligator have become such a valuable article of commerce all countries where they thrive are being scoured for them. A New York firm recently sent a band of Seminole Indians to India to hunt them. Most of the skins used in the United States come from Mexico, while nearly all of the product of this country goes to Europe. Florida formerly produced more skins than any other portion of the United States, but now furnishes less than any other section where the reptiles are to be found at all.—Indianapolis News.

POWER OF FROST.

A remarkable quarrying feat was recently accomplished at Rubislaw quarries, Aberdeen, Scotland. A large stone had been drilled ready for splitting, when the thought struck the foreman that the severe frost which prevailed might be utilized. Water was poured into each of the drill holes and it was found after a couple of days that the block of granite had completely burst open. An idea of the immense power of the frost will be gathered when it is stated that the stone thus detached measures twelve feet by five feet, and has a weight of about six tons.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

VALUABLE TIMBER.

"I think a good deal of that cane," remarked Senator Lotsum, exhibiting the walking stick with pardonable pride. "It cost $50,000."

"What are you giving me?" asked Senator Sweetner.

"It's a fact. There was $50,000 appropriated for the improvement of one of the rivers in my State last year. One snag was pulled out of the river, and this cane was made from that snag."—Chicago Tribune.

"That Ohio man who fatally assaulted a companion with a catsup bottle is being tried for murder."

"Well, it was to be expected that justice would ketchup with him.—Cleveland Plaindealer.

PING-PONG AS AN ADJUNCT TO JURY DELIBERATIONS.

Open Air Courting in the Public Squares—Monkey Shines at a Swell Party.

BY BETTY MARTIN.

A Chicago judge is reported to have introduced the game of ping-pong into his jury room, with excellent results. No doubt his example will be followed by other considerate ornaments to the bench, with the intention of making life pleasanter for the good men whose duty it is to decide upon the guilt or innocence of parties brought before them. The average juryman's brain is left generally in a pretty much befoggled condition by the ifs, buts and quibblings of the lawyers, so that pingpong in the jury room is not such a bad idea, after all. A game or two indulged in before settling down to a serious consideration of the case involved, might serve to clear addled minds, set the blood in motion and quicken the faculties.

An argument has been introduced that the introduction of ping-pong into jury-rooms would like as not cause to spring into being a class of professional ping-pongers, fond of the game, who would endeavor to make a business of serving on jurys, just to be enabled to indulge in this amusement. But, pshaw! it's no use crossing a bridge before coming to it, so the quicker such opposition is frowned down upon, the better.

Oh, say, why not also introduce Turkish baths and soothing beverages into the jury room?

* * *

Oakland certainly is the banner city for public courting; it seems to be in the air, and is carried on in every conceivable place from church steps to the cemeteries.

The ground around the Chabot observatory and other of the public squares seem to be favored places of rendezvous. Lovers commence gathering as soon as twilight begins to fall, and by the time comparative darkness reigns, there is rarely a vacant seat to be found on any of the numerous benches.

These interesting couples are usually to be discovered holding one another's hands, always provided Johnnie's arm is not around Jennie's waist. Balmy weather and love have ever gone hand in hand, which, perhaps, accounts for this propensity on the part of Oakland young folks. The electric cars, too, are well patronized by the spooney ones, and the outside seats nightly accommodate countless dozens of couples engaged in tenderly gazing into each other's eyes and pressing each a near hand. Then the boats, too, going from the city, fairly teem with young men and maidens in like state of mind. The marriage crop ought to be a heavy one this year.

* * *

In an Eastern city a woman's poolroom was recently raided by the police, who discovered therein some twenty-five or thirty women, all eagerly betting on the races. These women were said to comefrom the near neighborhood, and were many of them without even hats on their heads. The discovery of this resort was due to an abused husband who complained that his wife spent all her time and his money there.

I haven't heard of a woman's poolroom in our midst yet, but I do know that there is not a considerable number of women in Oakland fond of betting on the races.

The telephone is freely used in this connection, and many a dollar is lost and won over the wires.

Women are very peculiar in their methods of betting. It is seldom that they venture a sum of any considerable amount. At least they never do when they commence, but later on they are apt to grow bolder, and plunge deeper, as the passion for gambling takes stronger hold on them.

Again they do not often bet knowing the weak and strong points of the racers. More often their fancy is caught by a mere name, or if in attendance at the races, by a trick of the head or a glossy mane.

* * *

The Bradley-Martin set in New York must be hard put to in the way of amusement. Their latest diversion consisted in having a pet monkey as guest of honor at a very swagger dinner party. The latter is said to have behaved itself very well until he encountered the champagne, after which he amused himself by throwing missils in the shape of costly glassware and china at the other guests. It was then found necessary to remove the little beast and put him to bed.

Dinners usually are stupid affairs, anyway, especially where money is at a premium, so it wouldn't be altogether surprising if a few more fashionable people followed the lead thus given them, and introduced monkeys by way of entertainment, since the art of talking seems to be on the decline.

WILL BE THE BRIDE OF JULIUS COHEN.

MISS HATTIE JACOBSON

POPULAR SAN FRANCISCO GIRL WILL WED AN OAKLAND BUSINESS MAN.

Miss Hattie Jacobson, one of San Francisco's freshest and most charming belles, is soon to wed. The man who has the happiness to be honored with her hand is Julius Cohn, a well-known business man of this city.

The wedding is set for the 9th instant. It will be a quiet family affair, only fifty invitations having been issued. Rabbi M. Friedlander of Oakland and Rabbi M. S. Levy of San Francisco will tie the nuptial knot.

The bridal pair will make a tour through the southern part of the State, and after their return will make their home in Oakland.

Miss Jacobson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Jacobson. She is in the first blush of womanhood, having just turned seventeen. The young couple have a wide circle of friends, who are congratulating them on their impending plunge into matrimony.

SPEAKS FOR THE SOUTH SIDE.

TALIESIN EVANS WANTS HIS DISTRICT CARED FOR IN THE BOND ISSUE.

Editor Tribune: You are interested, of course, in the success of the proposition to bond the city for public improvement, and so should every citizen be: but no bonding proposition can expect to carry if it is lopsided. A proposition of that kind will invite sectional opposition and court defeat. The south side of the city—that is, the section south of Seventh street—has not overlooked the fact that the bond propositions so far outlined for submission to the people for endorsement are lopsided, because there is nothing in the series of special interest to that part of the city, whereas all other divisions of the municipality have been considerably provided for. Perhaps someone will say that the construction of wharves covers the case of the South Side. If so, it is an error. Wharf construction is a general term and applies more particularly to the West Side; and it was the West Side which was in the mind's eye of the framers of that proposition and not the South Side when the thought was put into words.

Some people in this city are foolish enough to think that the South Side need not be taken into consideration. There was a time when that kind of talk would go. It will not now, however. Out of the 75,000 inhabitants contained in this city at least 13,000 reside south of Seventh street, so I am informed by one who has given the matter special study. If over one-sixth the population can be ignored in a question requiring a two-thirds vote to carry, well, try it and see how it will come out. My impression is that some will be surprised.

No bond proposition should be submitted which will not unite the popular vote. The list of bond propositions published is more or less sectional. Every section has been specifically considered on the list except the South Side. The latter is only embraced under the general head of wharf extensions and construction; and it may be in that, and it may not, if the bonds carry. Let us be frank. We want something specific in the deal before we will consent to support it. Let us have, then, included in the bonding proposition a provision either for the extension of Lake Merritt to the First street railroad crossing or the extension of the Eighth and Twelfth street park on the north arm of the Estuary to First street. Either one will be specific and will satisfy the South Side and either one will solve the Twelfth street dam problem which seems to be with us always a thorn in the flesh and a source of popular irritation. We must have one or the other, or else the South Side will undoubtedly oppose the bond proposition as a unit when it comes up, and yet the South Side is as public spirited as any section of the city.

TALK ABOUT CO-EDUCATION AT THE SUMMER SCHOOL.

RADICAL CHANGES PROPOSED IN COLLEGE ANNUAL---NEWS NOTES FROM THE CITY OF BERKELEY.

BERKELEY, July 5.—The California climate seems to be particularly conducive to the discussion of the co-educational problem, and already the fray is commencing to be waged among the wise men of the summer school.

The general consensus of opinion is expressed by Professor Arthur Lachman of the University of Oregon. He says: "I am somewhat reservedly in favor of co-education as a general principle, chiefly for reasons of convenience and expense. In my opinion, the disadvantages of co-education are not sufficient to make the State duplicate its present educational machinery. The objections to co-education are largely social in their nature. Experience in the past has proved that the presence of women in the University does not interfere with the intellectual development of the men students. It is only when the percentage of women exceeds a certain amount (this percentage differing in different institutions) that objections to co-education become pronounced. Just where the line is to be drawn must in each case be determined by local conditions. Among these are the financial resources of the institution, the extent to which it is doing graduate work, and the peculiar difficulties caused by the large percentage of women.

"The baneful influence attributed to women with respect to college athletics may not be an altogether unmixed evil. The rather obvious disinclination of women to think for themselves as students is a much greater source of trouble."

Professor Lachman laid special emphasis upon the fact that by the social evils of co-education, he meant nothing more serious than the idle wasting of time, resulting from the freedom of relations between men and women students.

"During a four years' course as a student in the University of California," he said, "and an extensive experience in the University of Oregon—a co-educational institution, not a single scandal traceable in any way to the fact of co-education, has come under my personal notice."

F. Louis Solden, Superintendent of Instruction in the public schools of St. Louis, was less outspoken. "I believe," he said, "that the practice in the country should count for something. The general practice has been co-education. Under present conditions there can be no doubt of the principle as it is here in California."

Professor Josiah Royce, head of the Philosophy Department in Harvard University, requested that he be not quoted. He said that the question of co-education was one concerning which he had been thinking much of late, and concerning which he had not thought his way to a definite conclusion. The principle as at Harvard, he said, where the women are in separate buildings at a distance from the University proper, and where the same teaching force is employed for both Harvard and the women's college, Radcliffe Hall, has thus far proved very successful. As to whether it would continue to prove thus successful, or whether it would be applicable to western conditions, Professor Royce professed himself as being unable at the present time to definitely answer.

RADICAL CHANGES PROPOSED IN COLLEGE ANNUAL.

BERKELEY, July 5.—The recent resignation of Willis R. Peck from the editorship of the 1904 Blue and Gold at the State University, has started a movement among some of the more prominent students, which has as its object the transference of the publication of the book from the Junior class to the body of the associated students. The intention is to make the annual a University book in theory, as it is in reality. And corresponding to the intensity with which this is advocated, another party is protesting against the slightest deviation from the time-honored custom of class publication.

When the Junior class re-enters college next year, the whole matter will be brought to a point. Meanwhile both parties are pursuing a quiet course of investigation in regard both to the cost of past annuals, and the policies of their editors. And if one can judge anything in regard to the weight of argument at the present time, it would seem that a change should be made.

Bryan Bell, a prominent member of last year's Junior class, is heading the movement for reform. He points out that the cost of the book is becoming tremendously excessive. The cost of last year's annual was over $6,000, about $1600 of which was raised by a direct assessment on the class. The great cost of the book in recent years is due, he says, to the senseless rivalry of the classes, which demands that each book shall exceed its predecessor to a material degree.

The result of this class rivalry can be seen in this year's book, which employed artists of note the world over. Among its contributors were Ernest Thompson Seton, Howard Chandler Christy, Hamilton King of New York, W. H. Bull of San Francisco, Penchyn Stanlaus of Scotland, Miss Fannie Y. Cory of Montana, C. Allen Gilbert, Gustave Verbuk and Gordon H. Grant, all of New York. The price of the book was of necessity raised on this account from the former figure of $1.50 to $2.50.

Besides doing away with this senseless spirit of rivalry, no matter what the cause may be, it is thought that the book in its "josh" department will be freed from the ill natured and disagreeable features which have caused so much trouble in the past. The editor and manager, who are now responsible to no one, will be made responsible to the Executive Committee of the Associated Students, and the power of the latter, it is thought, will be sufficient to keep them within reasonable bounds.

The opponents of the proposed change, chief among whom are Earle C. Anthony and Fred E. Reed, editor and manager of last year's book, base their chief argument on the fact that the change would mean a total breaking away from custom, a thing which every college man holds to with peculiar reverence and fidelity. In opposition to this view it is pointed out that publication by classes has led inevitably to a dangerous departure from precedent and custom in that it has led to the employment of talent outside of the University, and the book is no longer truly representative of student ability.

It is proposed to attack the matter through the Press Club, an organization of the more prominent college journalists. S. Bruce Wright, president of the student body, is open in his advocacy of the change. President Wheeler has expressed the view that the Blue and Gold must in time inevitably be published by the student body. Prominent members of the Faculty and the Alumni, thinking that they see danger in the excessive cost of the books of the last few classes, also favor the movement.

It is proposed to offer a resolution to the Press Club at its first meeting next term, recommending the change. If this resolution can be put through, with the backing thus obtained it is proposed to bring the matter directly before the student body. The members of the club, who will thus in a great measure determine the fate of the movement, are: J. A. Moriarty, J. M. Koford, J. A. Brewer, E. C. Anthony, Bryan Bell, W. L. Finley, A. F. Lemberger, L. E. Mini, F. E. Reed, Alex Adler, R. W. Ritchie, B. W. Reed, W. Dorn, M. E. Deutsch and G. C. Mansfield.

FELL OVER SIDEWALK AND WILL SUE TOWN.

BERKELEY, July 5.—Mrs. Rebecca Hodgson, a resident of 2414 Fulton street, fell over a board sidewalk during the early part of the week and sustained a severe fracture of the right arm.

The sidewalk had not been kept in repair, owing to the fact that it lay directly on that portion of Haste street which the Board of Town Trustees had ordered to be opened. As no steps had been taken toward opening the street, and as the sidewalk had not been kept in repair, Mrs. Hodgson will sue the town to recover damages for her injuries.

FOURTH UNUSUALLY QUIET IN COLLEGE TOWN.

FRENCH GOVERNMENT HONOR A BERKELEY SAVANT.

BERKELEY, July 5.—Professor Max L. Margolis of the Semitic Department of the State University has received from the French Government an offer to be its representative at the coming International Congress of Orientalists, which meets in Hanoi, Indo-China, in next November. The offer is a high tribute to the scholarly attainments of Professor Margolis.

ISSUES BULLETIN ON CALIFORNIA RANGES

BERKELEY, July 5.—J. Burt Davy has just issued a bulletin on the "Stock Ranges of Northwestern California." In the bulletin, which is issued by the State University, Mr. Davy takes up stock raising, dairying, lumbering and the tanbark industry. The bulletin will be of peculiar interest to stock raisers and cattle men, as the author proves in it that sheep are no more injurious to a range, when properly handled, than are cattle.

CLOSING SCHOOLS IN FRANCE

PARIS, July 5.—An interpellation was made in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday concerning the application by the Government of the law of associations by the recent closing of schools, etc., which were managed by unauthorized congregations.

Premier Combes replied that the Government had decided not to permit any evasion of the law of associations, that it was determined to break down all resistance in religious affairs and that it had decided to carry out the spirit of the French revolution. "We have firmly resolved," said the Premier, "to assure the supremacy of civil society over monastic obedience."

Mr. Combes received an ovation from the Chamber, and it was decided that his speech should be posted throughout France.

A motion approving the declaration of the Government and expressing the Chamber's reliance upon the Government for the firm application of the law of associations and the necessary defense of the civil rights of the State was adopted by 36 votes to 206.

DR. ANDERSON'S PRIZE POEM

OUR NATAL DAY.

Rejoice, ye Sons and Daughters of proud Columbia's soil,
And lay aside your cares of State and implements of toil,
Come forth with shout and timbrel, raise high your banners gay
For Liberty was born to man on this Our Natal Day.

'Tis meet we come together with loyal hearts and true,
Beneath our stainless Banner, "The Red and White and Blue,"
For all the world doth honor our Emblem proud. We pray
Its folds may wave forever on this Our Natal Day.

We've had internal discord, we've felt the shock of war,
We've seen opposing battle lines confront each other far,
But battle clouds have vanished, and ended is the fray
And Heaven smiles upon us on this Our Natal Day.

At Lexington and Bunker Hill, King's Mountain, Brandywine,
Wrought hands to build the Temple of Liberty divine,
Immortal Warren's precious blood did not brave hearts dismay,
But sealed the Covenant which gave to us Our Natal Day.

Proud Land, that gave to history the proudest name of all,
The great and peerless Washington, that mighty tower tall,
Shout loud his praise, his mandates with faithfulness obey,
Inspiring hope and gladness on this Our Natal Day.

Our battlements grow taller, our bulwarks broader still,
The Sovereign People, Masters are ruling at their will;
'Twas step by step we mounted the world's great altar way,
And reached fame's highest pinnacle on this Our Natal Day.

Enshrined in sacred memory our heroes of the past
Arise and file before us at the bugle's plaintive blast,—
A vision that remaineth, and shall remain alway
To cheer the weak and fallen on this Our Natal Day.

But we must hew the future out of Fate's relentless flint,
By strengthening every sinew with high and pure intent,
Till the very God of Nations shall smile and look this way,
And bless our children's children on this Our Natal Day.

Our Country undivided. One Hope, One Love, One Flag,
Stands at the topmost pinnacle of Glory's topmost crag,
And cries to other nations, and clearly points the way
That leads to God and Righteousness on this Our Natal Day.

Then shout the glad Hosanna, and loudly beat the drum,
As ye hear the tramp of millions as they gladly, gladly come,
And rejoice that ye have followed where God had blazed the way,
For this Our Mighty Nation on this Our Natal Day.

DR. H. W. ANDERSON, Oakland.

SMALL FIRES DO LITTLE DAMAGE

Added to the list of Fourth of July fires reported in last night's TRIBUNE, the Fire Department responded to the following calls:

About 4 o'clock a shed and fence on a vacant lot on the corner of Third avenue and East Sixteenth street caught fire, but was extinguished before more than slight damage had been done.

Shortly afterwards the roof of L. Rafetto's residence at 952½ Fifth street caught fire from a spark of a firecracker. The blaze was easily put out before more than $25 damage had been done.

About 5 o'clock small boys set fire to dry grass at Eleventh and Fallon street, but luckily no harm was done.

Later another grass fire was started at Twenty-first and Market streets, but the Fire Department soon put it out.

BERKELEY MAN IS KILLED AT SALT LAKE

SALT LAKE, Utah, July 5.—Frank H. Darling, an employe of the Highland Boy Smelter, at Murray, was crushed to death at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Darling was employed as carman and in taking a car in to get a load of calcine was caught between the car and ore bin and his skull crushed, killing him instantly. Darling's home is at 1907 Mason street, Berkeley, Cal., where, it is said, his mother and sister reside.

LADIES OF G. A. R. HELPED TO SERVE SOLDIERS LUNCH.

Among the members of J. B. Wyman Circle, No. 22, Ladies of the G. A. R., who assisted in serving the luncheon to the soldiers who took part in the parade yesterday, and whose names have not been published, were Mrs. Sherkley, Mrs. Sampson, Mrs. Stethard, Mrs. Flanders and Mrs. Carr.

PRESSED HARD.
Coffee's Weight on Old Age.

When prominent men realize the injurious effects of coffee and the change in health that Postum can bring, they are glad to lend their testimony for the benefit of others.

Mr. C. C. Wright, superintendent of public schools in North Carolina, says: "My mother, since her early childhood, was an inveterate coffee drinker and had been troubled with her heart for a number of years, and complained of that 'weak all over' feeling and sick stomach.

"Some time ago, I was making an official visit to a distant part of the country and took dinner with one of the merchants of the place. I noticed a somewhat peculiar flavor of the coffee, and asked him concerning it. He replied that it was Postum Food Coffee. I was so pleased with it that after the meal was over, I bought a package to carry home with me, and had wife prepare some for the next meal; the whole family were so well pleased with it, that we discontinued coffee and used Postum entirely.

"I had really been at times very anxious about my mother's condition, but we noticed that after using Postum for a short time, she felt so much better than she did prior to its use, and had little trouble with her heart and no sick stomach; that the headaches were not so frequent, and her general condition much improved. This continued until she was as well and hearty as the rest of us.

I know Postum has benefited myself and the other members of the family, but not in so marked a degree as in the case of my mother, as she was a victim of long standing."

POLITICS IN CONTRA COSTA.

From over the hills comes the news that the fight for the Sheriff's office in Contra Costa county is waxing hot and complicated. There are now five aspirants for the Republican nomination, all excellent men. They are: R. R. Veale (incumbent), Rees Jones, Charles Ludden, Ralph Harrison and T. B. Pratt. Either one of the quintet would make an acceptable officer, and their chances for the nomination, according to those who are supposed to know, stands in the order named.

It is practically conceded that George Wiley of Port Costa will be the Treasurer. Should Mr. Wiley be the nominee his election is assured, and that at present indicates that six county offices will be filled by Republicans as follows: Supervisor, Judge W. S. Wells; County Clerk, J. E. Rodgers; Recorder, A. E. Dunkel; Tax Collector, Harry Raap; Assessor, Henry Jones, and Treasurer, George Wiley.

On the above offices the Democrats are at sea for a nominee. So far they have but four candidates for the nominations for county offices, viz: Sheriff, Arthur Williams of Walnut Creek; Coroner, H. J. Curry, the incumbent; Auditor, William Sillenger of Crockett, and for District Attorney, R. H. Latimer, incumbent.

SAYS SHOOTING WAS AN ACCIDENT

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—Dr. H. F. Steinle of 1480 Vallejo street lies in the Waldeck Sanitarium with a bullet wound in the region of his abdomen. The greatest mystery is being woven about the shooting of the physician.

The shooting occurred at the doctor's residence, 1480 Vallejo street, and the person who did the shooting was a brother, Lewis Steinle. The latter says that the shooting was accidental and in this statement he is backed by his his father, who was a witness to the act. The man who did the shooting has been detained by the police pending an investigation of the matter. He was taken into custody at an early hour this morning.

Captain Martin, Chief of Detectives, is inclined to believe that the shooting was an accident.

"The only witnesses," said he, "are Dr. Steinle's brother and father, and both say that the revolver was accidentally discharged. I am going to see the wounded man this afternoon, as I understand his condition is such as to permit of an interview. Notwithstanding the story told by the doctor's brother and father, the former is detained pending an investigation.

At the hospital it was said the condition of Dr. Steinle had improved during the night. The bullet, which is of 22-caliber, has been extracted, and unless septesemia sets in no danger is apprehended.

WILL DEDICATE A NEW CHURCH

The new building of the Pilgrim Advent Christian Church, Thirty-third and West streets, will be dedicated tomorrow with appropriate exercises.

At 11 o'clock in the morning Dr. H. F. Carpenter, pastor of the Santa Clara Advent Christian Church, will preach. In the afternoon Dr. P. Brett Morgan, pastor of the San Francisco Advent Christian Church, will occupy the pulpit, and in the evening Elder T. H. Organ of Santa Cruz and superintendent of the Advent Christian Conference of Northern California, will have charge of the services.

Mr. and Mrs. Malone, returned missionaries from China, who are expected to arrive on the Doric today, are expected to be present, besides large delegations from San Francisco and other cities. An interesting program has been arranged.

For the last several years the Pilgrim Advent Christian Church congregation has been holding its services in the Y. M. C. A. Hall. About six months ago the site on which now stands their new home of worship was purchased.

EAGLES SOAR WITH BOHEMIANS

LOCAL HOSPITIUM RETURNS TO THE ORDER WHICH IT SPRANG FROM.

Next Monday night Oakland Hospitium No. 2, Bohemians of America, will meet for the last time as such and their disband and resolve themselves into Oakland Fraternal Order of Eagles, Aerie No. 7. With this change, the order of Bohemians of America, goes out of existence. It was organized about three years ago in San Francisco because some of the members of it who had been affiliated with the Eagles took exception to some things which, it was alleged, had been done by leaders of the Eagles. This dissatisfaction caused disaffection and was followed by the organization of three hospitiums, one in San Francisco, a second in this city and a third in Sacramento. Of these hospitiums, Oakland was the strongest. The others, though strong at first, gradually dwindled until Sacramento went out of existence and San Francisco lived in name, only. Oakland Hospitium has now about 300 members and $3,000 in its treasury. Under these circumstances, the admission of that membership in a body to the order of Eagles will be an accession which will add to the influence and strength of the latter order.

After the organization of Oakland Aerie No. 7, there will be an election of officers. This will be merely a matter of form because the officers now in power will be again chosen. These officers are as follows: H. B. Mehrmann, chief host; Ed Weidler, first assistant host; Morgan Fitzpatrick, second assistant host; William Raferty, third assistant host; J. C. Williamson, president; P. J. Harrington, secretary; W. McDonald, treasurer; J. W. Heany, marshal; C. W. Denny, inside guard; Frank Wren, outside guard; O. A. Smith, M. J. Hallihan and C. W. Kohl, board of controling hosts.

Tuesday evening, these officers will be installed in the presence of members of the Eagles from San Francisco, San Jose, Vallejo, and other cities, after which the affair will conclude with a High Jinks.

THE MEDDLER GOSSIPS ABOUT MEMBERS OF THE SMART SET.

Society People Have Gone to the Country For the Summer.

Some of the girls, who were recently discussing the attachment of the handsome son of the Judge, and one of the younger daughters of a large household, that I told you about last week, were wondering if there wasn't another understanding, or perhaps engagement in the girl's family, that of an especially pretty and always well gowned older sister, who reminds one of the tall slight girls Gibson sometimes draws—in fact she once took part in some Gibson picture tableaux for the sake of sweet charity. The gentleman is a popular attorney, quite on in years, who has been best man at more weddings than I care to remember I have attended, they reach back so far.

He so seldom pays serious attention to any one girl, that when the two attended the grand opera together on several occasions, and were seen about together very often, the gossips had the list of bridesmaids made out, and all the arrangements completed, but nothing seems to have come of it so far. Perhaps they are just lying low.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

The event of the week socially was of course the card party given by Bertha and May Young on Thursday, for their new sister-in-law, Mrs. Archibald Young, who was Maude Gillet of Detroit. She met and was married to Archibald, at Honolulu, while visiting her aunt and uncle there. We all went up to the Rose-Crest with a little sense of anticipation along with us, for however much we like one another, you can't deny there is a sense of sameness about most of our affairs, always the same faces, lots of times the same gowns to look at, and usually the same arrangements all aroupd, but at the Youngs one can expect something just a little different, even if we were not all so fond of them and their pretty, unaffected ways, their gowns alone would be worth going miles to see; although, of course, none of us think about winning the prizes, still, they always give such lovely ones. I know if by wonderful luck I should ever capture one, I'd run all the way home to—in the language of the classics—spring it on the family, who would drop dead with surprise, because I've never even won a booby prize. But on Thursday we saw a new face, in fact two, because Mrs. Thomas Johnson of New London, Connecticut, who is stopping with Mrs. Lou Allender, was there. While not exactly pretty, the young bride, with her charming reddish brown hair and brown eyes, her sweet manner and bright and lively disposition, is very attractive, and looked very well indeed, in one of her new gowns, a very pale blue dotted chiffon made over blue silk, and trimmed with lace. The hostesses looked well, too. Bertha was gowned in white organdie trimmed beautifully with black Chantilly lace, and May in a dainty and very Frenchy combination of green pina cloth, trimmed with a sort of pink embroidery and green chiffon. The beautiful apartments—one hates to call them mere rooms—at Rose Crest, were not elaborately decorated, the whole affair was gotten up in a hurry, but in any case, further decoration isn't at all needed there you know. I dislike elaborate decoration where one has beautiful furnishings, and one can look from the windows and see quantities and quantities of beautiful flowers and greens in their proper places. There were just enough cut flowers placed about in bowls and vases, to make things look feminine and home-like. The tally cards were two white hearts together, pierced through with an arrow, small red hearts adorning the larger ones, red ribbons to which were attached bells, being tied at the top. Edith Gaskill won the first prize at five-handed euchre, a cut glass and silver topped bon bon dish, while Mrs. John Hampton carried home the second, a dainty real lace little turn-over collar.

Some of those present were: Mrs. Richard Derby, Mrs. William Gardiner Cooke, Grace Cooke, Mrs. Charles E. Parcells and her sister, Hattie Kimball of Los Angeles, who is visiting her; Bessie Palmer, Alice and Ruth Knowles, Mrs. Lee Cole Burnham, Jean Clift, Carolyn Oliver, Mrs. Fred Stolp, Edith Gaskill, Mrs. Theo Dredge, Mrs. Howard of London, Pearl King, Mrs. Ernest J. Cotton, Mrs. John Hampton, Mrs. Louise Allender and her guest, Mrs. Johnson.

Bailey Millard, whose new book, "Songs of the Press and other Adventures in Verse," is the California literary surprise of the year, has been the most zealous of men for the advancement of literature on the coast, and more than one accepted author owes his first start to this talented writer and editor. Last week I mentioned him as the discoverer of "The Man With the Hoe," and but for Mr. Millard's sound judgment, it is practically certain that Edwin Markham, foremost of the living American poets of today, would still be the obscure though lofty-minded principal that we used to know as something of a rhymster, during his years at the Tompkins School. One day Markham, while dining with Millard, read to the latter a poem which he had read to others with indifferent success. "I'll give you $25 for that," said Millard, "and it will make you famous." Markham promptly accepted the offer, and when Millard gave to the world the "Man With the Hoe," he accompanied the publication with a just estimate of its worth—an estimate which, after all the famous controversy, is now universally accepted. The "Songs of the Press," are awfully good, amusing, and life-like of course, and especially interesting to newspaper people, but-it-is-the-nature-poems,—his "Other Adventures in Verse"—that give the volume its great worth: "Muir of the Mountains," "The Mastered Man," "Carlyle to Jane," the "Voices That Abide," "T'Amo," "The Apache in Ambush," "The Crotalus," which in its few lines,

"A coil of browns, a whirr!
A dart of flame!
A child's shrill cry, amid the grass a stir,
She shrieks my name!
In agony she calls
And calls, O God!
Why hast Thou made this slimy thing that crawls Thy chastening rod?"

pictures such horror and make one see the whole creepy and awful picture. Reading "Endymion," which also expresses so much in so few words, is as follows:

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever."
Dear Keats, 'tis very plain to me you never knew Madge, more beauteous than Helen of Troy. Oh, she is far more grief to me than joy!"

And last of all I must quote for you this brief little poem, called Satire, which goes:

"Wiser the honest words of a child
Than the scornful scholar's fleers;
Richer a fortnight of crudest faith
Than a score of cynic years."

Now who would have expected just that sort of fine philosophy from a newspaper editor? But the cynicism of the sanctum has never touched the mind of Bailey Millard.

Quite the most unique affair given in our county for some time, was the vegetarian luncheon given on Tuesday, by Mrs. Ida Mansfield Wilson, in honor of Miss Stacey of London, who is stopping here. The affair took place at Mrs. Wilson's quaint and pretty adobe home on Buena Vista avenue, in Alameda, and although the hostess and one or two of her guests were the only vegetarians present, before the end of luncheon, every one at table was quite won over to a meatless repast, and when one thinks of it, it is wonderful what an elaborate meal one can get together without the aid of birds and fish. Some of the dishes were created by the hostess herself, and the ladies seated about the table, which was prettily adorned with red and yellow roses and nasturtiums, enjoyed the following menu: Puree of peanut soup, tomato jelly salad with mayonnaise dressing, an entree of macaroni in Italian style, while the principal dish, which would have corresponded with the meat at another luncheon, was of some prepared matter that tasted like chicken, and was cooked with mushrooms and green peas, every one had lots of fun making up a name for the dish, which was awfully good even if nameless. With it were served Saratoga chips. The dessert was of farina and raspberries, served with whipped cream, and nut cakes, glace fruits and nuts and coffee being of course included. Those present besides the hostess and guest of honor were: Mrs. Charles Spencer of London, the Misses Alice and Harriet Rix, Mrs. M. E. Cramer, Mrs. John Hawley, Mrs. James Lawson, Mrs. Shirley A. Mansfield and Miss Hicks of Berkeley.

Mrs. E. Avery McCarthy, or, I should say, Mrs. J. J. Moore, the details of whose first and second marriage, sandwiched by her divorce, have been discussed on both sides of the bay this week, once lived on this side for some months, and so some of us know her rather better than lots of her society friends across the bay. This was only Oakland, so she didn't always care how she appeared before us, and I have seen her lounging about the house in the afternoon, arrayed in an ancient wrapper, that together with a bottle of cleaning fluid, wouldn't bring two bits at a rummage sale.

And her hair, oh, how tousled it could look; one couldn't realize that she was the beauty people rave about. Her sister, Helen Wagner, was over here with her, and George Wheaton was awfully devoted to her. One doesn't hear so much of Helen nowadays. I remember she had rather an irritating habit of always humming under her breath, and when at the theater if one sat just in front or just behind her, one wanted to give her a good pinch or a slap and ask her to keep quiet.

One evening at the Macdonough I especially remember her humming through all the acts and between them, and never speaking a word to the youth with her, who was either a relative or deaf. Anyhow, he didn't seem to mind.

In this silly season of summer stories everybody is talking of the Gay Lord Quex, playing at the Columbia, for as there is not to be a Miller season on the quiet side of the bay we are having, perforce, to cross these nights in order to see the interesting plays which Mr. Miller and Miss Anglin are producing. Trelawny of the Wells was a series of charming stage pictures, like colored plates, strung together with more or less interesting dialogue, but the time to leave was really after the second act. Very little that was interesting happened after that. Quex is quite a different thing—not at all the play for a young girl to see—but good enough for those who have cut their wisdom teeth and a few molars beside. It portrays a state of London society that is not at all pleasing, though true enough, I dare say, but everybody in the play is either wicked and cynical or vulgar, or all three, and the combination is such that after seeing the play one feels as though one's mind needed a shower bath. To tell the truth, Lord Quex is much the most respectable person of them all. It is impossible for Henry Miller to seem very wicked, even a monocle, a powder of grey hair and deep lines down the sides of the mouth do not accomplish any great amount of wickedness for him, so far as looks are concerned. And Lord Quex, being engaged to a "nice" young girl, is really trying to be good, which is more than can be said for any of the other characters, who are all trying to be as naughty as possible.

I've heard a number of men comment on the play and one and all detest it because the young woman of the piece, a part taken by the lachrymose Grace Elliston, has an affair of her own on the side, though engaged to Lord Quex at the time. Funny, isn't it, how it distresses men to see a woman on the stage or to read a woman in a book who has two affairs on at the same time, though a man thinks nothing of driving a four-in-hand. Well, anyway, Miss Elliston's affair is not a very serious one, and if she had loved Quex she would not have had it, which is the real pity of it. Its so easy to be good when one's in love—and so hard when one isn't.

Then there's a devilish Duchess. This lady is of the painting-with-passion type, though as portrayed by Jennie Eustace, Lord Quex deserves no particular credit for resisting her—it would have been remarkable had he fallen a victim to her shop-worn charms. The other men and women are equally unprincipled, except dear old Mrs. Whiffen who has a delightful part and Ethel Hornick who does the young matron with the same frank air—you would almost say "bluff" in a man—with which she plays everything in which we of the coast have seen her. I'd like to see her do the Ella Wheeler Wilcox Duchess. I wonder if she could.

Of Miss Anglin as Sophy Fulgarney there is nothing but praise. I saw the original production in London and Miss Anglin is much better than her prototype. One thing she does most cleverly. She only falls into the cockney dialect when she is under excitement—at other times she (she's a manicure, you know) talks like her lady customers, whose accent she has naturally picked up. Miss Anglin has never been in London—she was born in Canada—and her knowledge of cockney is limited to one sentence she once heard a cockney girl utter, but she builds most cleverly from this foundation. Her Sophy is vulgar, of course, unscrupulous and dishonorable, but in the third act where the great revulsion of feeling comes, she shows the touch of nature which makes the whole world kin. Suddenly she decides to sacrifice herself for the sake of the foster sister she loves and her unselfish deed rouses Lord Quex into gentlemanliness, too. He cannot be out-done in generosity by a woman and that woman a manicure. But see it for yourself, it's worth while for the problem. Tonight is the last night for this week but there may be some repititions later in the season though at present they say not, as the rehearsals for Quex are so exacting.

What San Francisco especially needs is a woman's club house, where all the clubs might be housed together or else a hotel for bachelor girls. The city is large enough now to support such institutions and I wonder that some man or woman with money to spare has not seen the value of such an investment. Mrs. Sather, for instance, or Mrs. Hearst, could make themselves universal benefactors by starting such a scheme, and make themselves much money as well. In New York the University Woman's Club answers such requirements. It only costs five dollars for college women to be put up, before a certain date next fall, and the dues are nominal for those who do not reside in New York. The house is big and comfortable and charmingly furnished. The best rooms in the house are but sixteen dollars a week, including board, and you can serve little dinners there, if you are content with Apollinaris, for of course, they could not permit wine in a woman's club house, though I don't exactly see why. I never heard that it was tabooed in men's clubs. Men callers you can have every night in the public parlor, but the dear things have to go at 12 o'clock, which is almost as bad as living in Oakland, where all one's men callers have to leave at half past eleven in order to catch the last narrow gauge, as all of the nice men come from across the bay, of course.

But the benefits of the Woman's University Club are confined to college women and some women are unable or unwilling to work from four to seven years even to secure eligibility to a good club. How many years was it that Jacob served for Leah and then for Raqhael? Well, anyway, it might be worth while serving seven years for a nice woman, though I don't think the modern man would, but it certainly isn't worth while serving such an apprenticeship for a club. In Denver they have already in the foundation stage a Bachelor Girls' Home, which is to be quite too tremendously swell, for if there's anything in this world that is more trying to all the sides of one's nature than house hunting it is and ought to remain nameless. First, there comes the long column of advertisements of houses which the angels of heaven might go envying you and me—when it comes to reading about them—and that, are no more like the reading matter supposed to be descriptive of them than chalk is like cheese when one sees them. Then there are stories of friends who have to move in a few days, whose flat will just suit, and after waiting a week and letting two other chances slide by, they decide to remain where they are. There are places so near one walks, until there are blisters the size of a dollar—the dollar saved in carfare—on her heels. It isn't necessary to go over the agonies of the house-hunter. We have all had them.

And there are furnished rooms! If there is anything worse than the chase after elusive unfurnished houses, it is the search for furnished rooms. And everybody knows about that also; and after they are found the length of the table of rules and regulations that goes with them, and is the only table that may be spread within their sacred confines, it little short of appalling.

Nevertheless, we must have homes, and this is especially true of womankind. We have been told something like one billion eight hundred million times that woman's sphere is home, yet when a woman starts out to find something that she can afford that will be a home, unless she has wealth galore, she can't find it. That is, if she is a woman alone, a bachelor girl, a self-supporting woman, a widow, or in common parlance, an "old maid." It is manifestly impossible for her to live alone in a cottage; she can't carry coal or cut lawns, but when it comes to finding a flat that she can afford, they are generally much too big, or if they come within her means as to size and price, the first rule is hard and fast, "no cooking."

There are times when the professional woman feels that life without a cook stove is a farce. She wants to dabble in flour, and turns away from broiled lobster with homesick longing for cream toast like her mother used to make. The woman who stays at home, or who uses her home as a dressing room and restaurant, and a place to go when everything else is shut up, doesn't know anything about the beauties of home life, or have the slightest appreciation of what a home really means. It isn't until you "get out and hustle" that you can understand what it means to rejoice in your own fireplace and hall-tree.

Moved by these and other great and noble thoughts for the good of humanity, two Denver women, one of whom shall be nameless, got together and devised a scheme for single woman's paradise that comes pretty nearly filling the bill. One of the women had had the experience and the other woman had the skill and the training, and as is frequently said of bad children, "whatever one didn't think of, the other one did," and the result is "The Bachelor Girls' Home," which it is hoped will shortly be built, several enterprising gentlemen having realized that it is a winning proposition from the first. The woman who needn't be nameless is Miss Lillian B. Jones, architect.

The plans are not difficult of comprehension, and admit of any simple alterations, such as an added story, while the expense will be determined largely by the materials used, the finishing, etc.

In the first place it has been the intention to utilize every inch of space and combine the greatest degree of comfort with the minimum of expense. With this end in view, and also perfect sanitary conditions, we decided to relinquish the individual kitchen, which is, after all, a good deal of a nuisance, and have substituted therefor a long common kitchen that goes across the back of the building, opening into a dining room at each end. This kitchen is given first place, because it is the newest thing about this plan, although some such arrangements are said to exist in some European flats. It was suggested by the cooking arrangements in domestic economy school. Every suite of rooms, even if it is only a suite of one, has a separate gas stove, with its own meter, a separate table, with locked bins, and a dresser for utensils, supplies, etc. The ice boxes are arranged as usual in flats, outside the building. There are garbage cans for each floor, and the dining room is furnished with small tables, in some uniform pattern, like the ebony effect in the lunch room of the Chicago Business Woman's Club, with the same effect carried out in the china cupboards, which are a part of the wall decoration. Each dining room will have one extension table in case any resident wants to have a dinner party.

Every roomer can get her own breakfast, lunch or dinner when she wants it, and clear it away without disturbing anybody else. If she wants to cook a dainty little luncheon and carry it around and serve it in her own apartment there will be nobody to hinder or make her afraid. If half a dozen wealthy (!) bachelor maids who eat their meals at the same hour choose to club together and hire somebody to do their cooking and dishwashing it will be their royal American privilege to do so.

Like the hotel in Hoyt's "A Bunch of Keys," there has been an effort to make every room in front, with a bay window," and the inner court, which will give a little spot of green, also gives every window outside ventilation. An inside room that is outside, to speak paradoxically—that is, one that has sun and air—will answer just as well for a woman whose business takes her out of it all day, while the other rooms will appeal to women physicians, lawyers, teachers, writers, etc., and so on.

Many of the suites are so arranged that two ladies can take one together, having their parlor and the common kitchen in common. On the second and third floors every suite has its bath room, which is something that will commend it at once to everyone, since there is nothing more annoying than a public bath.

The first floor may be used as doctors' offices, and is arranged differently. It is well known that women do not begin to take the exercise they need. It isn't so well known, but it is equally true, that they do not have half as much fun as would be good for them, nor do they plan deliberately to have a good time and live while they live. To correct this feminine tendency a large gymnasium forms a part of the plan of this building, and the floor will be one that will make dancing a delight, while a platform across one end will lend itself to private theatricals, musicales and recitals. This gymnasium can be let for classes in athletics, dancing, etc., and will give a good income and serve the residents of the house, rather than in any way interfereing with them.

There is a laundry in the cellar for the convenience of anyone who wants to do her own washing, and storerooms there for the things that will accumulate in spite of one. There are two open roof gardens, and one enclosed, so that a good sunning will always be possible.

This sounds too good to happen, but already there are half a dozen men who are calling upon Miss Jones, 1726 Grant and asking how and when, and what, and other important questions, and it seems as if ere another six months had fled somebody might see that while this is no scheme of Col. Sellers, nevertheless "There's millions in it."

The expense, rents, etc., cannot be determined, because the location and style of the building will decide that very largely. The cost will range from $40,000 to $60,000. Miss Jones estimates, according to the finishing, and the land required for this plan is five lots. Anyone can afford to pay considerably more for a place within walking distance, but such a place costs correspondingly more.

Whoever puts it up will make regulations to suit himself, but the usual ones, no cats or dogs, no children, will be sure to prevail, and if there are pianos there will probably be a rule prohibiting using them between 10 p. m. and 10 a. m. There ought to be a rule that no one will be taken who is devoted to cabbage and onions, unless they take them raw, and of course no tenant will be taken at all, without irreproachable references.

Something of the kind, with a few modifications would probably meet with favor from the stray bachelors of this city who are wandering from one boarding place to another, but the cooking arrangements could be less elaborate and there could be a few billiard tables.

It is easy to make fun of this plan, and advocate building an orphan asylum on one side and a home for cats and dogs on the other, that the "old maids" might be able to find something to pet, but just the same it would be a success from the time the first foundation stone was laid, and there are dozens and dozens of business women around the bay who would count the days until they could move into such a home if built here.

May Burnham thought of such a scheme while she was making such a success of lodgers on the other side of the bay, but she married, and of course that ended all that.

I heard something the other day concerning the building of a new house which was not half bad and which actually happened. An architect talking with a customer, remarked, "I suppose you want lots of closets."

"No," replied the customer stiffly, "We have no skeletons in our household"—happy man.

The scheme for a united Woman's Club house is very dear to most of the club women, but some one or two stiff-necked clubs always stand out and spoil it all. Some time ago the Woman's Exchange in San Francisco had a philanthropic moneyed man willing to venture his money on such a scheme. The plan was to buy the lot between the Crocker Building and the Mechanics' Library and erect there a building sufficiently commodious to house all the clubs in the city with a cafe for the Woman's Exchange on the top floor and a salesroom for the Exchange on the ground. There was to be an auditorium and everything. Several of the clubs were enthusiastic over the prospect and were perfectly willing to rent permanent rooms and to take the auditorium on certain days, but certain other clubs, notably the California, stood out, though, as a matter of fact, Mrs. White never communicated the proposition to the club but sat on it herself by her own authority. So the plan, which was really a good one and feasible, as too few of those things usually are, fell through for lack of united support just as everything used to fall through in Oakland because we had no esprit de corps.

Now the California Club has purchased a lot way out in the residence district, thought it is not as yet able to pay the full purchase price and it will be years before it can build a club house. How much better and more convenient the other plan would have been. I see that the Mercantile Library has the rooms in Sutter street that the California Club was talking some time ago of taking.

Two holidays coming together make this quite a breathing spell and almost everyone went into the country for the Glorious Fourth. Somehow the noise is less awful in the country places and everybody who could fled to the woods. woods.

Everybody with a country house filled it full and city people were only too delighted with the invitations.

The Russell Cools have a big house party at Los Gatos.

The Kittredge house at Tres Encinas is full.

Mrs. Remi Chabot has all her daughters and her daughters' husbands and her daughter's fiance and some friends besides at her place near St. Helena.

The Horace Blanchard Chases at Napa have a house party at their beautiful home, and among their guests is Miss Kate Clement.

Mrs. Hearst went Thursday to Hacienda de la Posa Verona at Pleasanton and took some friends with her.

Mrs. Lucie May Hayes, Miss Mabel Clare Craft, Mr. and Mrs. Ralston, Vail Bakewell, Jack Wilson and Burbank Somers are guests this week of Mr. Richard Hotaling at Sleepy Hollow, Marin county.

Mrs. J. Walter Scott and Miss Adele Scott are at their camp near Guerneville where they have passed so many charming summers and where they have reduced camping to an art. Mr. Scott, Mrs. Rynders and a party of friends went up to spend the Fourth.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

The Fields of Alameda are camping near Geyserville and in a farm house near by are Mrs. F. W. Read and Miss Frankie Read, Mrs. E. J. Dodge and Miss Mildred Dodge and Mrs. Husbands, of Alameda.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Grant will spend the Fourth at Bolinas, and will be there for the week of July 12-19.

Mrs. Delos Johnson of Alameda has gone East to spend the summer with her mother.

The Dunhams, too, have a house party at their pretty Los Gatos home.

Rev. and Mrs. William Carson Shaw of East Oakland are spending a month at Banff, British Columbia.

The black corduroy that the girls and matrons are wearing so much for traveling and outing suits in the East, ought to become popular here, where it isn't so warm in the summer, but the material isn't half so warm as it looks. Don't the men always prefer it for tramping and hunting?—and surely a man fond of outdoor sports during the summer months is bound to be as comfortable as possible. I think one of the swellest gowns I ever saw on a woman was of tan cordury, lined throughout with scarlet silk, and a few big pearl buttons on the waist. It was stunning.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

Those of us who so greatly admired lovely Edith Simpson, at Mrs. Thomas Coghill's big luncheon some months ago, are interested in her rumored engagement to Lieutenant Bettison, U. S. A.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

One of the weeklies has this to say of the Walter Starrs: "Mr. and Mrs. Walter Starr nee Moore, are back from the Yosemite, but before they returned their friends were awfully panicky about them. All Oakland had its gaze upon them, and held its breath as wanderers from the Yosemite related that they were arising at four o'clock in the morning to tramp away into the wilderness. They went on one trip and did not come back for four days, sleeping on a glacier. It is said no one ever made the trip before."

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

They say that a writer of musical comedy librettos intends making the engagement and many times changed marriage date of the Martin-Oelrichs affair the theme of his next work.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

Friends from here who once visited the John Bradburys', about whose frisky heads rumors of divorce are flying, thus bringing them into public notice again, say that when being shown about their beautiful home in Los Angeles, and entering the library, they were amazed to find no books, and asking their pretty hostess if it was really the library, she said it was, but that they cared very little for books, they were so poky in a room.

But she managed to fish out two. They were the Blue Book of the Pacific Coast and Ella Wheeler Wilcox's "Poems of Passion."

Some of our people who have been in Washington for many moons are en route for home,

The Victor Metcalfs left Washington on Wednesday, and were accompanied by Congressman and Mrs. Coombs, with whom they will visit the Yosemite Valley before arriving here. (By the way, will you show me a few people who haven't visited the Yosemite this year?) And Senator Perkins left Washington on Thursday to spend two weeks at his old home in Kennebeck, Maine, before returning to Palm Knoll.

The latest fad in the East is learning the deaf and dumb alphabet, that so many of us knew in a sort of a way, when we were youngsters, even if we never got beyond the middle of the alphabet, we thought we knew the whole thing, so it was all right.

The smart set are now studying it, prepatory to using it on the streets when they return to town in the autumn. Noises in New York are now so loud and constant that to hear one's voice on the sidewalk or in a carriage is impossible. The deaf and dumb alphabet will relieve the situation, and will be found convenient at the opera and the theaters. However, I don't believe it will become popular here on account of the noise in our city, because we need every bit of noise we can scare up to convince ourselves that we are really alive. Why, even yesterday, on the glorious Fourth, when I—who very sorrowfully was compelled to spend my first Fourth in town—and expected to hear nothing but the roar of double-headed dutchmen, and everything else loud and bangy and terrifying, could almost have imagined myself in the midst of a great calm meadow land on some other place about as noiseless, and I didn't have any cotton in my ears, either.

Over at the Hotel Rafael they are having really more luncheons and card parties than we are here. Some one always seems to be entertaining there.

Mrs. Fred Green, who is as hospitable as she is plain, is over there as usual, and gave a large euchre party during the week, with three seven-handed tables and one six-handed table, Mrs. J. A. Folger and Mrs. William B. Hopkins from this burg being among the guests.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

The one big society event of the week was Mrs. Kate Bulkley's tea for Miss Mary Culbertson, Ebell's first president. The guests were mostly old friends of the honored lady, who enjoyed meeting her again, among them having been Mrs. John Bakewell, Dr. Myra Knox, Mrs. Edward Kluegel, Mrs. Wallace Everson, Mrs. W. H. H. Graves, Mrs. John Russ, Mrs. Warren Olney, Mrs. Archibald Borland, Mrs. J. R. Scupham, Mrs. E. C. Sessions, Dr. H. P. Van Kirk, Mrs. Henry Vrooman, Mrs. Franklin Bangs, Mrs. Lloyd Baldwin, Mrs. J. C. Campbell, Mrs. H. P. Carleton, Mrs. Francis Dunwoody, Mrs. Ida H. Garrill, Mrs. Giles Gray, Mrs. Vernon Waldron, Mrs. M. C. Chapman, Miss Sarah W. Horton, Mrs. George Bunnell, Mrs. Frederick Ginn, Mrs. Charles Palmer, Miss Jennie Wheaton, Miss Charlotte Wheaton, Mrs. John P. Irish, Miss Hesse, Mrs. Milton Bulkley, Miss Mabel Gray and Mrs. William R. Davis.

The Senior George McNears will probably entertain at a number of informal affairs in honor of Mrs. McNear's sister-in-law and daughter, Mrs. A. R. Church and Philena Church, who will arrive here from Japan in a few days, having made a two years' tour of almost the entire globe.

The Fred A. Jacobs, formerly of this town, have got the building craze, and not satisfied with having a new home across the bay, are now building a country place at San Mateo.

Interesting Record of the Recent Social Events in Oakland.

The junior George McNears, Albertine McNear, Bessie McNear, Charlie Hubbard and Ned Brayton spent a day at the Tavern of Tamalpais last week.

Speaking of Charlie Hubbard, who, by the way, is thinking of going to Tahoe for his vacation, reminds me that Mrs. Will Hubbard, who has been spending some weeks at Santa Barbara, with her mother, Mrs. Jane Sidney Peck of Milwaukee a very wealthy woman, who spends most of her time in Europe), will return soon to superintend the many details of her pretty new home her mother is building for her, next to the senior Hubbards, on the Heights.

Mrs. Mein and Bob and Emma and Harriet Knight have joined the large colony of Oaklanders at the Geysers, where I expect there are gay happenings just about now.

There were quite a number of weddings celebrated during the week, and one or two engagements announced, but none of them were especially interesting to us except that of James H. Pond, who was married in Sacramento on Monday, to Emily Thompson of that place, the ceremony being performed by the groom's father, the Rev. W. C. Pond of San Francisco. The affair took place at the bride's home on Fifteenth street. Only relatives were present, and the couple left later for a northern wedding journey, to reside here later.

Well, so long for this time. I must scurry for the 1 o'clock train to go over to "Gay Lord Quex," and I don't want to be late.

THE MEDDLER.

HUBER-KUHNLE.

The first American soldier to be made prisoner in the Philippines during the recent war, Harry Huber, was again made a captive Wednesday, but this time the captor is Cupid, and his enslavement is for life Miss Lulu Kuhnle of this city becoming his bride at noon of that day.

Mr. Huber was a hero in one of the most famous episodes of the fighting in the Philippines, being a prisoner with Lieutenant Gillmore during his long captivity. The almost incredible story of the sufferings and rescue by Colonel Hare of Mr. Huber and his fellow prisoners is now a matter of history. Mr. Huber was one of the organizers of General Liscum Camp of Service Men of the Spanish war, and is now a member of the national executive council. He also attended the recent national convention of Service Men at Springfield, Ill., as a delegate.

Both young people are well known in Oakland, being members of two old and highly respected families, the groom's parents being Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Huber, and the bride being a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kuhnle.

The bride is a dashing brunette and has considerable ability as an artist.

The ceremony took place at noon Wednesday in the chapel of the First Presbyterian Church and was witnessed by immediate relatives only. The bride was attended by the groom's sister, Miss Mildred Huber, and Fred V. du Brutz was best man. Rev. E. E. Baker officiated. After the ceremony an impromptu reception was tendered the happy couple by the Service Men, who had gathered at the residence of Ralph J. Faneuf, on Alice street, to congratulate the newly made benedict and his bride. Mr. and Mrs. Huber will spend their honeymoon in Santa Cruz, after which they will reside in this city in the pretty new cottage recently purchased by the groom.

A PRETTY LUNCHEON.

Mrs. John Tisch was the hostess at a very pretty luncheon Wednesday afternoon at her home, 1211 Telegraph avenue. The affair was in honor of her aunt, Mrs. Rosa Wunderlich, and her cousin, Mrs. Rosa Schmidt, both of whom reside in St. Louis, Mo. They have been touring California since last March, and are spending several weeks in Oakland as the guests of Mrs. J. Tisch. The table was prettily decorated with pink ivy geraniums.

Covers at the luncheon were laid for Mrs. Rosa Wunderlich of St. Louis, Mrs. Rosa Schmidt of St. Louis, Mrs. B. R. Larkin, Miss Anna Tisch, Mrs. W. H. Dalton, Mrs. David Tisch, Mrs. T. L. Cavasso, Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Clarence Calderia, Miss Madeline Tisch, Mrs. A. Schubert, Mrs. J. MISS MAY CARR SURPRISED.

Branch No. 1, C. L. A. S., tendered a delightful reception to Grand President Miss Mary Carr at their hall, Eighth and Grove streets, on Monday evening last.

The hall had been beautifully decorated for the occasion. It was in the nature of a surprise. When Miss Carr stepped into the hall, before her were a large delegation of members from San Francisco, Alameda and Berkeley.

Rev. M. King was chairman of the evening and made a very pleasing speech complimenting Miss Carr on her reelection to the grand presidency of the society, as also the good work being done and the extreme good fortune of having so valuable a woman at their head.

Miss Carr replied in a very feeling manner.

Remarks were also made by Rev. F. Z. Morrison and Fathers Caniwell, McHugh, McNally, McMahon, Nolan and Seeda.

Little Miss McAvoy presented Miss Carr with a handsome basket of carnations. During the evening light refreshments were served.

RECORD OF EVENTS IN THE CITY OF ALAMEDA.

Edward Romer Trices Up His Son and Lashes Him on the Bare Back Like Horse Thief.

ALAMEDA, July 5.—Edward J. Romer of 720 Railroad avenue, has discarded the rod as a means of punishing his 13-year-old son, George Romer, but he has substituted for it a double-braided window cord and a system of tricing known only in frontier settlements, where horse thieves are made to suffer for their crimes.

With his boy's back denuded of clothing, and the slender frame hung with cords by the wrists from the joists of his basement ceiling, the father administered 85 lashes to his son until the lad screamed in agony. Romer had intended to inflict one hundred lashes, but he was prevented by the uninvited appearance on the scene of James J. Knight, who had been attracted by the boy's groans and cries. When he appeared, the boy's back was a mass of welts and bruises. Romer ordered Knight away under penalty of a beating, but Knight knocked the fellow down and released the tortured youth.

Romer was arrested and was allowed to go on bail of $100 cash. He says his boy is incorrigible.

MANY KILLED IN AN ACCIDENT.

CARS COLLIDE ON STEEP GRADE AND DEATH COMES TO PASSENGERS.

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y., July 5.—A wreck which occurred on the Mountain Lake Railroad late last night caused the almost instant death of ten persons and one victim died in the hospital here today. It is believed that several others will succumb to their injuries. The bodies of many of the victims were crushed and maimed almost beyond recognition and the scenes about the wreck were horrifying.

The accident was caused by a combination baggage and passenger car getting away from the motorman and rushing down the mountain-side at terrific speed. The brakes refused to work and the heavy car crashed into a loaded open car also descending the mountain. The latter was hurled from the track and turned on its side and over fifty per cent of the passengers were injured.

As the scene of the accident is remote from the city, it was two hours before appliances to raise the open car were secured. The accident occurred at the end of a day of pleasure at the top of the mountain and the cars were loaded with excursionists.

The car on which the dead and injured persons were riding was the open one in charge of Motorman Arthur Perkins and Conductor James Cameron and the car which caused the wreck was in charge of Motorman William Dodge. According to Conductor Cameron, the closed car collided with the open car as the latter was rounding a curve. Both cars then went down the grade at lightning speed.

At the foot of the hill the cars came together again. Just before the second collision the lights in the first car went out.

The heavy double car struck the other with such force that it raised the rear end into the air and over the right embankment.

Both cars were derailed and passengers were thrown in every direction.

Some were killed instantly; others died from their wounds soon after.

The dead, all of Gloversville, are:
MRS. EDWARD J. BAIRD.
MISS ELECTA BAIRD.

MANY ACCIDENTS IN NEW YORK.

SCORES OF CARELESS PEOPLE ARE BLOWN UP BY FIRECRACKERS.

NEW YORK, July 5.— At police headquarters, 125 accidents to the use of explosives in celebrating Independence Day have been reported during the past twenty-four hours. Roosevelt Hospital officials announced, however, that 147 accident cases had been treated there alone.

Stray bullets fired by reckless celebrators injured three persons so seriously that it is feared all may die from their injuries.

Four young men were terribly injured, three possibly fatally, by the explosion in Brooklyn early today of a big bomb with which they were going to wind up their celebration.

Charles Kenny, aged 18, was injured about the thigh and legs. He may recover.

Those believed to be fatally injured are:
William Hartig, 20 years old.
William Wainscott, 19, Millard, N. J.
Edward Ryan, 20.

The force of the explosion mangled them externally, as well as inflicting internal injuries. All were unconscious when assistance came. A man who is alleged to have given the bomb to the boys was arrested.

The bomb which caused the damage is known as "a coston" signal, and contained more than three pounds of powder. It is used on ocean steamers and is considered dangerous when not properly manipulated.

Several unsuccessful efforts were made to explode it with bricks. Finally Wainscott volunteered to explode it with a lighted match. The boys gathered around and Wainscott dropped the match into the can.

The powder flickered an instant and then the bomb exploded with terrific force. The report was heard a mile away. The boys were thrown in all directions. No help was near and Kenny finally dragged himself to the nearest street, where he secured aid from the police for his wounded comrades.

YOUTHS BLEED FOR LIBERTY.

PAINFUL WOUNDS CAUSED BY PREMATURE DISCHARGES OF POWDER.

The staff of physicians at the Receiving Hospital were kept busy all day and far into the night yesterday to give surgical aid to those who allowed their patriotism to overcome their discretion. Grains of powder were picked from face and hands, torn fingers dressed but most of the cases attended to were wounds caused by the supposedly harmless blank cartridge pistol in the hands of small boys.

Many lads were injured during the day who received treatment elsewhere.

Shortly after 4 o'clock Henry Kuhl, a schoolboy, 12 years of age, residing at 298 Fifth street went to the hospital to have one ugly hole in his left hand dressed. He explained that when firing a blank cartridge pistol, he put his hand in front of the muzzle.

A half-hour later, in walked S. Ballard, a thirteen-year-old boy living at 518 Fifteenth street to have a similar wound treated that he had received in the same manner as the previous patient.

The next sufferer was C. Kletz of 317 Ninth street who displayed a badly mangled right hand that had been injured by a blank cartridge. Kletz said that he was walking down Broadway when some unknown person passing near him discharged a revolver and the flames and wadding of the blank cartridge tore away the greater part of his little finger on the right hand and also burned and lacerated that member.

It is probable that the little finger will have to be amputated.

With his face covered with blood and filled with tiny specks of powder, Joseph Hawthorn went crying into the hospital. Between sobs he managed to state that he had been bending over a can containing powder when a companion accidentally dropped a lighted punk into the can, causing the contents to blow up. Hawthorn was so severely burned about the face and hands that scars will be left. Hawthorn, who is 12 years old, lives at 760 Brush street.

About a half hour after Hawthorn had been treated, Joseph Wilson, a longshoreman living at 652 Madison street, called to have hundreds of grains of powder picked from his face, as a result of a toy cannon shooting from the wrong end. Wilson's eyes were burned, but not very seriously.

Another victim of blank cartridges was Oscar Johnson of 2435 Seventh street, West Berkeley. He had a hole in his left hand, caused by holding that member in front of the muzzle while firing a pistol.

Some one threw a firecracker that hit Louis Friedman in the left eye. The cracker exploded and made a painful, but not serious wound.

C. O. McComb, a ship carpenter living at 967 Washington street, was shot in the right eye by a blank cartridge pistol in the hands of an unknown person. The injury, although painful, will not result seriously.

A can of powder blew up and badly lacerated the hand of A. Hoogs, a clerk living at 59 Valley street. The injured man was treated and no serious results are feared.

L. Herbert, a schoolboy living at 1374 Eleventh street, received a bad abrasion of the left hand and the thumb on the right hand by an exploding firecracker.

It was just 11:10 o'clock P. M. when young Herbert arrived to be treated, and he proved to be the last patient that night.

WANTED TO DIE FOR JEALOUSY.

MRS. H. PARSONS INHALES GAS BECAUSE HER HUSBAND DOES NOT LOVE HER.

Jealous of her husband's attentions to another woman, Mrs. Hallie Watkins, the four-month's bride of C. B. Watkins, a conductor employed by the Oakland Transit Company, attempted to end her life last evening by inhaling illuminating gas.

She was found in a dangerous condition by her husband and Dr. Morris was immediately summoned and, after hard work, the unfortunate woman was restored to consciousness.

To Mrs. W. O. Ashley of 3823 Grove and with whom the woman and her husband had been boarding, Mrs. Watkins said that her husband cared more for another woman than he did for her, and that she had seen letters written to her husband by the other woman.

Before Mrs. Watkins turned on the gas she tore up her marriage certificate.

Watkins would make no statement with regard to his wife's attempt at suicide.

HOW THE GAGE MEN FIGURE ON GUBERNATORIAL CONTEST.

Bookmakers in San Francisco, Like the Chinese Gamblers, Must Pay Hush Money—What Assemblyman Knowland Knows.

BY THE KNAVE.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 4.—Last week I wrote you something about the bunco men who work San Francisco as a rich field. Now let me give you something about a humble race of grafters who flourish in secret by something of the same means. I refer to the hand-book makers.

These are the fellows who take your bets on the races and pay you when you win. Of course you know there is a law against pool-rooms in this city, and the police are outwardly supposed to enforce that law. To be sure Zick Abrams, who used to be a dry-goods clerk in Oakland, is above all such laws, and makes his own terms with the police, so he can work as he will.

But the little fellows cannot afford to pay as much, and so they cannot be as bold in their operations as Zick, still, if you are a betting man you surely know where to get your bet down without going to Sausalito. There isn't much necessity for secrecy in making your bet, but for the sake of form you'll have to refrain from shouting the odds at a busy street corner. As for the rest, the business is as safe as the conducting of a cigar stand.

There are thirteen hand-books operated in San Francisco under the noses of the police. They are operated in violation of the law of the city. The police know all about it, but there are no arrests. Why?

Because each of the thirteen hand-book operators pays $2.50 a day for police protection. None so blind as the police official who is paid not to see.

The method of operation is this: The policeman who has charge of collecting the protection fund bets $1.00 in a book. The next day he is handed $3.50. That makes a winning of $2.50 for the day. The dollar goes back as a bet. The $3.50 is paid over the following day. And as the fund is collected six days in the week, that means that each book-maker pays $32.50 each week to be permitted to keep in the game. With thirteen book-makers paying tribute the protection fund amounts to $195.00 a week—a sum not to be sneezed at. Who gets it? Who knows?

* * *

The Chinese are at it in the same old way. Last legislature sent your Assemblyman, Joe Knowland and a committee to investigate the Chinatown briberies. They pegged away quite industriously, and E. J. Livernash, of the Examiner, assisted by Reporter Boyle made out quite a case—a morally convincing case.

There are now three Chinese lottery companies and 65 Chinese lottery agencies more than there were when Joe Knowland's committee took its testimony. Of course nobody with the intelligence of a child supposes that this sort of thing goes on without payment. The protection fund is regularly collected. Who gets it? There's the mystery.

The police keep the Chinese law-breakers in very proper form so far as limits are concerned. The games and lotteries cannot run outside of a certain district. But in that district they not only run, but they may thrive as they please, and even when the owner of a game protests openly that he has been swindled no effort is made to close him up.

There is no longer any breaking of the heavy doors leading to the fan-tan and pi-gow games. Those doors cost money. It is cheaper for the Chinamen to pay for protection than to have their heavy doors broken. So the fund is collected regularly, the games thrive, and men get rich on small salaries.

Mysterious things happen whenever this Chinatown business is touched upon. Your Assemblyman, Joe Knowland will remember the secret testimony taken by his committee—the Chinese testimony taken with every precaution lest the man who gave it should be put to death. Knowland will recall how an office in the Parrott building was secured one night; how the committeemen sneaked up to that room, one by one; how a Chinaman who had a tale to tell was smuggled there, and the revelations he made in secret. Mr. Knowland also will recall the deep concern of President Newhall of the Police Commissioners, to have the name of the secret witness revealed.

Well, that Chinaman has long since been permitted to reopen his lottery game. That is one result of Mr. Knowland's secret inquiry.

The Grand Jury is now pursuing an investigation somewhat similar to that conducted by the Knowland Committee. That Chinaman who told Mr. Knowland so much left for China very suddenly on the last steamer. That is another result of the Knowland inquiry.

The secret testimony given by that Chinaman was made a matter of secret record. Mr. Knowland's committee was supposedly the custodian of that record. The transcript of testimony is intact with the exception of that given by the Chinaman who was smuggled into that Parrott building room. That testimony is the most important of all. It is gone. The transcript is not to be found.

Surely many mysterious things happen whenever that Chinese golden dragon is approached.

In politics the Gage whoopers are again in full cry. For a time they were inclined to sing small, but now they are declaring again that everything is coming their way. They are having the labor unions pass resolutions that the union men are not to join the Primary League, and it has taken all the Schmitz influence to prevent them from having Abe Ruef flatly denounced. From this they argue that they have the Primary League on the run.

Martin Kelly says he is for Gage. All along he has demanded recognition as the local boss and has insisted on being given control of the local delegation in the Legislature. Probably he has been given some recognition and some promises, but the machine doesn't feel more than half sure of him. Still, at present the "push" is united and pulling together.

Here are some figures from the Gage people. They are laughed at by the opposition, but they are the first figures yet given out and will serve as a basis for future calculations:

County.	Delegates.	Gage Claims.
Alameda	71	35
Calaveras	8	8
Contra Costa	11	11
Glenn	2	2
Humboldt	20	20
Kern	8	8
Los Angeles	96	96
Mariposa	3	3
Nevada	12	12
Sacramento	28	28
San Joaquin	18	9
San Luis Obispo	8	8
Santa Barbara	10	10
Santa Clara	37	19
Santa Cruz	11	11
Shasta	8	8
Solano	15	15
Sonoma	22	15
Tuolumne	7	7
		325

* * *

It will take 415 votes to control the convention. You will notice these Gage figures do not include anything from San Francisco. Some of the Governor's managers say everything is lovely here, and that he will have at least 145 of the 177 delegates from the metropolis. Others assert it is too soon to make any figures on this city.

The Governor himself expects the 11 votes of Orange, the 5 of Kings and the 12 of Riverside, with the probability of forcing Assessor Kendall of San Bernardino to program his 16 votes with the Governor if he wants the nomination for the State Board of Equalization.

Walter Parker says he is sure of a solid Los Angeles delegation for the Governor. He asserts he met with no trouble in fixing up things except in Pomona, and that he managed to line everything there all right. The Flint men will not give Gage over half the Los Angeles delegation, so you see how opinions differ.

You will also notice that the Gage men are banking a good deal on the Metcalf-Henshaw movement to get the Alameda county delegation away from Pardee. They expect to split that delegation a little better than even and also to get a little more than half of the Santa Clara votes. The Hayes brothers have not declared against Gage, and may yet come into camp with those of their following they can control. Senator Charlie Belshaw laughs at the pretensions of the Gage boomers that they can take Contra Costa away from him. It may be taken for granted that if Controller Ed Colgan can make his combinations any other way he will not deliver his Sonoma delegates to Gage. No more will Kendall of San Bernardino if he can help himself. Whoever gets the Los Angeles delegation, however, can force Kendall's hand.

Gage's managers declare they have brought Senator Smith of Kern to time and that they now have Kern's eight votes sewed up. Senator Luchsinger is also said to have been called off in Solano. Mayor Clark always comes to the Gage managers when he arrives from Sacramento, and it looks as if he had been placated. In San Joaquin it is expected to split even with Henderson, through the influence of West and Senator Muenter.

Of course the Gage men will not admit that they cannot get votes in the smaller counties, but as yet they have made no efforts except for the big delegations. They admit they have made trades and combinations with candidates for Congress and State officers, and declare that in this they have got ahead of Flint and Pardee. I think they have about concluded to throw over Chief Justice Beatty and take up Garoutte, who has made an active canvass and has some votes to trade with for himself. There is no doubt he will trade them fast enough if given a chance. THE KNAVE.

W. C. PALMANTEER AIDS IN ARREST.

HELPS DETECTIVE SHOREY IN LANDING A SODDEN MAN IN JAIL.

Although his name is not on the city prison register as an arresting officer, nevertheless Banker W. C. Palmanteer gathered in an obnoxious citizen from West Berkeley last evening and turned him over to the authorities.

Sherman McDonald, six-foot-one in his stockings, was riding into Oakland on the outside of a San Pablo electric car under the influence of liquor. He was also full of patriotism and showed it by shooting fireworks from the car.

Conductor Parsons remonstrated with him but McDonald would not desist, so, when Thirteenth street and Broadway was reached, McDonald was turned over to Detective Shorey.

It happened that Shorey had spent a most strenuous day and was tired from his labors. So when the officer piloting McDonald to the city prison, the prisoner held back and then ensued a fight which was ended only when Palmanteer took McDonald in a close embrace and lugged him off to the lock-up.

HONORS WERE EVEN IN THE BASEBALL GAME.

OAKLAND TOOK ONLY ONE GAME.

TWO CLOSE CONTESTS WHICH PLEASED THOUSANDS OF SPECTATORS.

Honors were even in the double contest of the Lohmanites and Ponies at Recreation Park yesterday. In the morning the Midgets held the winning hand and gave Uncle Hank's band of ball tossers their needings to the tune of 3 to 1. At the matinee it was the Shetlands' turn to shine, and they finished at the long end of a 1-0 score.

In the work of Smiling Schmidt and Whalen there was no difference. Both pitched the kind of ball that wins games, and in the nine long segments only three hits were gained off the delivery of each. And of the six men who were given free transportation each slab worker had an equal number to his credit.

Up to the beginning of the eighth inning it looked as though another extra inning affair was scheduled, for a long string of circles marked the scoring doings of both sides. Then, with Parrott on second, Delmas sent a stinging sphere out over the second cushion and Parrott Tacklets ambled home. The score of the morning game:

RACES OF THE CALIFORNIA CLUB

SLOOP JESSIE TAKES THE WALLACE CUP FROM THE FAST ALERT.

The sloop Jessie E. won the California Yacht Club cruise yesterday and took from the fast sloop Alert the handsme Wallace trophy. Captain John T. Carrier sailed the victorious boat, and Vice-Commodore Robert Vincent could not defend the trophy because the Alert was out of commission. Gypsie, Captain Charles E. Clark, came in second; Thelma, Commodore S. S. Marshall, third.

The racing course, supposed to be a distance of twelve nautical miles, lay from the Alameda narrow gauge mole to a stakeboat anchored 220 yards to the southwest, thence to and around the Presidio shoal buoy, thence back to the starting point. The yachts got away at 12 o'clock and the Jessie E. finished at 2:37:30, the Gypsie at 2:45: 15 1-4 and the Thelma at 2:46.42.

The race was sailed on an ebb tide, with, at first, a light south wind, but later a fair breeze from the southwest. All measurements and time allowances were computed according to the Pacific Interclub Yachting Association rules.

The regatta committee consisted of August R. F. Brandes, Captain George M. Shaw and Captain Lee Gale.

TRAFFIC MEN WILL PLAY BALL TOMORROW

BAKER & HAMILTONS TO MEET THEM IN GOLDEN GATE PARK.

The Railroad Traffic Base Ball Club, composed of representatives from the various railroad lines located on the coast, will play the Baker and Hamiltons of Sacramento tomorrow at 12:30 o'clock at Golden Gate Park. As the clubs are pretty evenly matched some rare sport is looked for, more so from the fact that the last time the clubs met, the Traffic nine beat the Baker and Hamiltons, and the present game was arranged to give the latter a chance to retrieve themselves.

Some noted "fans" from Sacramento and San Francisco will be on hand to enliven the game. Ten-winkle of the Michigan Central, as also L. M. Fletcher of the Missouri Pacific, will be there with the same voices that did so much to spur the railroad boys on to victory last season. It is rumored that a certain heavyweight will come down from the Springs to umpire the game, out of compliment to the railroad boys, amongst whom he counts many friends and admirers.

BAY FERRIES FULL ALL DAY.

OVER 25,000 SAN FRANCISCANS CAME TO OAKLAND YESTERDAY.

Passenger agents of the Southern Pacific Railroad say that the ferry business on the bay yesterday was the heaviest in the history of the company for that length of time. At the ferry depot on the other side of the bay 25,000 tickets were sold for Oakland alone, a correspondingly large number being sold to points in Marin county. The influx to this city was the result, in the main, of the great celebration of Independence Day which was advertised to take place here. At 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning, in San Francisco, 500 people were unable to reach the boat because they could not get near enough to the ticket sellers to get their tickets. To accommodate the great rush within the ferry depot, nine ticket takers were employed nearly all day.

A TENANTLESS HOUSE BURNS AT FRUITVALE.

FRUITVALE, July 5.—A large unoccupied house on Fruitvale avenue near Blossom street was burned to the foundation last night. The Fire Department was unable to save the building, as there was no water in the nearest fire hydrant. The house was owned by Du Bay Smith. With the aid of the small chemical engine the department succeeded in saving a building in the rear of the burning house.

WAS NEARLY BLOWN UP BY A BOMB

William Devereaux, the third baseman of the Oakland Baseball Club, was almost killed last night by the explosion of a large bomb at his feet. That he escaped with only a few scars is a miracle, for the large, curved glass one-quarter inch thick, owned by Bert Bercovich the cigar dealer, was shattered into a thousand pieces by the explosion. So loud was the report that a few by-standers were almost deafened by it. Mr. Devereaux, who was standing nearest the bomb, can hardly hear out of his left ear. His trousers, made to order for the Fourth, were torn in three places and were all stained with powder marks. It is hoped by the many admirers of Mr. Devereaux that he will be able to finish the present series of baseball games against San Francisco.

TOWN TALK.

This week's issue of Town Talk contains some paragraphs of special interest to lawyers. The Saunterer writes of the fraternal pull, the question, "Who is the society belle in San Francisco?" the King and his old friend's daughter, the suit in which Frank Norris figured, how they drink champagne in Honolulu, etc., etc. There's a story of the stage and a sketch anent "Quex." The second installment of Confessions is given up to those of a Valet. There is much clever verse and the departments are all entertaining.

STATE POLITICS WILL BEGIN TO BE LIVELY NEXT WEEK.

Congressmen Are Now Laying Their Wires to Return to Office.

Caminetti Will Try to Land at His Old Desk in Washington.

What the Politicians Are Doing in the Various Districts.

(Special to the Tribune.)

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—The latest is that Tom Geary is planning an attempt to return to Congress. For awhile he figured on seeking the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination and many newspaper articles were published upon those lines to the effect that the re-enactment of the Chinese Exclusion Act was in itself sufficient to create a boom for him.

After his retirement from Congress Geary located in this city and went to practicing law and while this Gubernatorial talk was going the rounds a few weeks ago he was much in evidence in public places and indicated very clearly that he would like to have things go that way. Recently though he moved back to his old home in Santa Rosa and it is this fact coupled with his present activity in politics that has created the report that he feels himself strong enough to break a lance with Frank Coombs.

Geary's program will be to make a strong appeal to the labor unions outlining his position as their champion in matters pertaining to Chinese competition. In addition to this he figures out that the district has more Democratic votes in it than most people think, his calculations being based upon Democratic statistics made up at the time De Vries was representing it in Congress.

As a matter of fact though Frank Coombs has little to fear, for, eliminating personal references such as those shown in the case of De Vries, it is plain that the district is safely Republican by fully 1,500 votes, some of the estimates ranging as high as 2,500 at the polls therefore Coombs has a comparatively easy task while he need concern himself even less as to the nomination, for no other Republican candidate has put in an appearance nor is there likely to be one.

Caminetti a Candidate.

In the newly-constructed First District it is understood that another Ex-Congressman, to wit, Caminetti will also make the attempt to land at his old desk in Washington. Since serving the people at the Capital, Caminetti has been honored by being first appointed Code Commissioner and then elected to the Assembly but he thirsts for greater glory than that and hence if the Democratic organization agrees he will see what he can do with his old time political stamping ground.

At present Caminetti can undoubtedly derive considerable satisfaction from his calculations, for owing to the mix-up in Humboldt there is no Republican in sight to do him battle. If, too, he is relying upon a factional fight attending the outcome of the Gillette-Selvage contest he is liable to be sorely mistaken for each side has agreed to line up for the victor as soon as the Convention honors are awarded.

It is passing strange that so few aspirants are heard of in the lower end of the district, for with Humboldt involved in so bad a local muddle it looks as if it would be easy for a candidate to come to the front in the mining counties and carry off the prize. With the exception of Judge Walling of Nevada City no one, however, seems to be giving the subject any consideration for although the name of Senator John F. Davis is occasionally heard his friends say that they know he has no intention of heading for the goal again, not this year at least.

McLachlan's Stand.

Down South, Congressman McLachlan has taken a stand that will have considerable influence upon the Gubernatorial fight unless the unexpected happens in certain quarters. Instead of adopting the separate delegate plan McLachlan has cast his lot with the State delegation and his fight therefore means a distinct factor in the contest between Gage and Flint. Here is the way the situation appears at present:

McLachlan is without serious opposition for the nomination, for although Byron T. Oliver has been mentioned in that regard, it is not believed that in view of McLachlan's decisive victory a couple of years ago, he could be defeated for the nomination. At the polls the situation is in the nature of a walkover, for the Seventh Congressional District now consists of Los Angeles county alone, and the vote in 1900 stood, Republican 18,260; Democratic, 11,865; Social Labor, 2,895; Prohibition, 1,320.

Now, as McLachlan and his friends are regarded as the political allies of Governor Gage, a ticket headed "For Gage and McLachlan would mean a combination of strength. To offset this, Flint would have to take up a Congressional candidate also, or else let the impression go out that his delegates would be opposed to McLachlan and as he could not, afford to run a new man against the present Congressman, even if he wanted to, it is suggested that the San Benito candidate will meet the situation by marking his ticket "For Flint and McLachlan."

Then arises the question though of how about the Los Angeles Times? The fight made by Otis against McLachlan is a matter of history, and as the General is not slow to forgive it is asked if he would be willing to accept McLachlan in connection with Flint's candidacy. If so, well and good; if not—well, it is easy enough to study out what complications might ensue.

In Alameda County.

This same question is naturally enough being discussed in connection with Metcalf' determination to have the same delegates as those selected for the State Convention, and over here every one is wondering what it means with reference to Dr. Pardee's Gubernatorial candidacy. However, it is wasting time to speculate upon that subject right now, for within the next few days, when the preliminaries for the approaching campaign are attended to, it will be easy enough to determine what the program is to be.

When the present three days of holidays are over, politics will be taken up all along the line to the fullest extent, for with the primaries only five weeks distant and the State Convention on August 25th, there is little enough time to attend to all that is to be done. One thing is now becoming reasonably certain—that instead of the State Convention being called to order in the midst of the political chaos some anticipated, everything will be straightened out long before that time.

As a matter of fact, the indications now are that by August 15th, that is to say, three days after the primaries are held, it will be easy enough to call the turn as to who will be the nominee for Governor. The horizon is beginning to clear in all directions, for in the anti-Gage counties in the interior Flint's banner is being borne aloft by the opposition, Edson is scooping in the north, and Gage's friends are sifting things down in the cities.

Take San Francisco, for example. Three weeks ago it would be hard to figure out a more complicated condition of affairs than existed here. Ruef had just organized a Primary League club in every district in town, Martin Kelly with his Republican Alliance was establishing an organization everywhere he could find a foothold, Colonel Burns was gathering his friends together and carving out a path for himself, Phil Crimmins was supposed to be somewhere in the background directing his own political forces, the regular Republican County Central Committee was wondering which end it had better appeal to, and the rumors of the since-formed Independent movement was in the air.

Now, however, everything appears to be simmering down to a proposition of the Primary League against the field and according to the way they are talking now there will only be two tickets in sight when the primaries are held—one the Ruef League end of things and the other the combined opposition. This, therefore, will make a clean cut issue in San Francisco, and when the returns are in from there, Los Angeles, Sacramento, Santa Clara and the other leading fighting grounds it will be easy enough to see who is the prospective Gubernatorial nominee. It will not be possible however, to figure out the ticket all along the line for no matter which side wins the victory will have been obtained by concessions in the delegations as regards other candidacies.

Committee Powers.

Some of the counties where the primary law is mandatory are apparently going to shake individual candidacies up by the way the election is called for the enactment provides that the county committee must specify whether the delegates are to be chosen by assembly districts, or by wards, or by primary election precincts, or combinations thereof not to exceed an assembly district for each proposed convention. Figuring this out it can be seen where the committee can make a vast difference in the operations and prospects of candidates.

For example, supposing an aspirant for office had been working away upon the basis of carrying his assembly district and found that his strength was such that no matter what attacks were made upon him he was sure to carry his district by a safe majority. Well and good. But if the committee should issue the call by precincts then where might he be. His strength would undoubtedly be more pronounced in some precincts than in others, in fact it might be concentrated in a few precincts and in the rest of the district he would be weak. While therefore he might be able to carry the fifty delegates, the call, if issued by precincts might result in his only getting half that number out of the immediate localities where his friends were centered.

Personal Pointers.

U. S. Webb, District Attorney of Plumas county, and candidate for Attorney General, is in town and will remain a few days looking after his political interests.

Congressman Victor Metcalf will arrive in Oakland on the 12th.

Postmaster A. B. Lemmon of Santa Rosa was down during the week. Mr. Lemmon is a busy man, as in addition to his official duties he runs the Santa Rosa Republican and plays a leading part in politics.

W. H. Waste of Berkeley left this week for a vacation that will extend to the end of the month.

Collector of the Port Stratton is enjoying a fishing trip in Oregon.

Harold T. Power of Placer county was among the week's arrivals. Now that convention time is coming around again he is getting his war paint on.

Senator Rowell of Fresno is passing a few days in town. It is understood that he will run for the Legislature again this fall.

Postmaster Nelson of Stockton dropped in for a few days. The politicians of the Slough City are all anxious for the return home of Congressman Woods so that they can see how their postoffice fight is coming out.

Lynn Shaw of Santa Ana, who was appointed postmaster this week is the proprietor of the Herald of that city.

J. A. Marsh has gone to Los Angeles for a week's rest.

AT SEA WITHOUT A PILOT.

Wrong Signal Starts Steamer Away From Pier Without the Captain.

Frank J. Baker, a civil engineer who resides at Sausalito, came ashore from the ferry steamer Amador with 300 other passengers Monday morning in a frame of mind.

"My! but I'm glad I wasn't in swimming," said Mr. Baker the minute he was sure East street was under him and that an exciting trip from Sausalito was at an end.

"Thirty minutes at sea—not without a rudder, but without a head to command the hand that manipulates the rudder; that's been the experience of myself and the other good people who at a quarter to nine embarked on the ferry steamer Amador and started for this side.

"We were all aboard and ready to cast off when bang- went the gong in the engine room, and the boat's big paddles commenced, drawing us out of the ship. We backed out at full speed—an unusual thing—and soon found there was about as much method in the steamer's movement as there is in a chicken with its head missing.

"There was excitement in the pilot-house, but no captain. A boat steered by excitement and not by a human's knowledge of navigation is not a very pleasant thing to which to intrust your life. The porter had accidentally pulled the string giving the engineer the signal to start his machinery. The captain was still in Sausalito and the mates had not appeared. We were drifting about the bay, our lives held in the hollow of a porter's hand. When the engineer was apprised of the situation, he stopped the Amador's paddles and took orders from the captain, who stood on a stringer ashore and bellowed instructions to the crew aboard. Finally we floated close to the slip and picked up our skipper. He brought us over safely. That's why we're thirty minutes late."—From the San Francisco Examiner.

ENGLISH LOVE OLD GLORY.

WHY THE STARS AND STRIPES ARE RESPECTED IN GREAT BRITAIN.

Oakland, Cal., July 4, 1902. Editor TRIBUNE. Sir: As a loyal Englishman of many years residence on the Pacific Coast, the Fourth of July has always been a day on which I have retired to my corner, eaten humble pie, buried my head in sack-cloth and ashes, and duly done penance for the wrongs my forefathers perpetrated on the forefathers of the "truly American" (not transplanted) of the present generation.

I have heard the screaming of the eagle; have noticed the knots in the tail of the British lion; which he has completely shook out as he shook off the fleas on his majestic carcass; and have heard a deep sigh of relief when the powder ran short, the fireworks ceased, and patriotic Americans stumbled into the arms of Morpheus.

I had long known that we in England while we did not celebrate the Fourth of July, always recognized and honored it as a legitimate national holiday of the American people, the original stock of whom are "bone of our bone, blood of our blood; the eldest born of the mother of nations"; and, when our American friends and neighbors hoisted the stars and stripes on our domestic flagpoles, we pointed with pride to that emblem of human liberty—a liberty that was first born and nurtured under the protecting folds of the red cross banner of old England.

I have long hoped for the day when the America of today will recognize the fact that the England of today is her national ally and friend.

The Oakland Fourth of July Committee has sounded the key-note and done themselves honor, the University of California honor—and the English speaking people throughout the world honor—in asking Henry Morse Stephens—an Englishman—professor of history in the State University, to deliver the oration of the day. That his speech will come as a revelation to the great mass of the American people is certain, when they realize that the American revolution was only one phase of the general opposition to the government of King George III.; that the English people were as much opposed as they—that when Yorktown surrendered and Lord North went to our German King George III. and said, "It is all over"; the yoke was lifted off the necks of Englishmen as surely as it was off those of the colonists.

Thus the American Flag is honored in England, as the British Flag is reverenced by all true Britons, including your humble servant.

TODAY'S NEWS LETTER.

With its usual up-to-dateness, today's San Francisco News Letter presents as a frontispiece a group of photographs reproductions of the mode of celebrating the Fourth of July at Nome. "The Patriot," by Adelaide Harcourt, is an amusing and touching little story of a small boy's adventures on the National Holiday. Wallace Irwin has some excellent Fourth of July verses which will appeal to every man, recalling to him the joys of celebration when he was young. A correspondent signing himself "Truth" makes a vigorous reply to "Iconoclast," who last week took occosion to make fun of our Dewey monument. In the "Looker On" department there is an excellent story of Major Waller, the noted Army officer, and a little anecdote about Sybil Sanderson that is decidedly rich. "The Boy God Made" is an amusing story on Mark Twain, contributed to the News Letter by A. B. Stone.

CENTERVILLE HOLDS GRAND DEMONSTRATION ON FOURTH.

Greatest Celebration Ever Held in History of Township.

Many Floats From the Industrial and Fraternal Organizations.

Hundreds of Visitors Flock to the Scene to Witness Events.

The Washington township Fourth of July celebration held yesterday at Centerville, was a gala day and one which will live in the history of Alameda county. The patriotic exercises, the monster parade, including many beautiful floats, and thoroughly up-to-date display of fireforks were the features of the day which attracted hundreds of spectators from far and near. A program of unusual length and excellence was carried out without a hitch to mar the proceedings. The demonstration would have done credit to a city of ten times the population of the little town. The citizens of the town made up in enthusiasm and hard work what they lacked in numbers, and brought to a successful termination the greatest patriotic celebration ever known in the annals of the prosperous little town, or the township.

The committees in charge of the festive occassion are deserving of the utmost praise. For the last two months they have been industriously at work preparing for the event, and succeeded beyond their fondest expectations.

DECORATIONS.

The town was gaily attired and presented the true holiday appearance. In the entire town there was not a hamlet so small but what bunting and the stars and stripes floated in the wind. The main street was heavily hung with streamers of bunting reaching from one side to the other. Under the flags were lines of electric lights, donated by the Standard Electric Company for the occassion.

Every business house in the heart of the town was heavily burdened with patriotic colors. Many of the decorations were artistic in design and tastefully arranged.

SCHOOL HOUSE DECORATED.

The Union School House was notable on account of its decorations. Long streamers of bunting were hung from the cornices of the building and reached to the ground. The streamers were so arranged that they spelled "Union," carrying the double significance of the principle on which the Republic was founded and of the school itself.

OTHER DECORATIONS.

The decorations did not close with the town itself. The four principal approaches to the city, considered by drives in Alameda county, were handsomely decorated. For half a mile to the east, the people coming from Niles and the Niles canyon district were met with bunting strung from one side of the roadway to the other. The same beautiful sight met the incoming visitors from the three other directions. The approaches being decorated for fully half a mile.

It is safe to say that the town itself was decorated with 10,000 yards of bunting, and that the approaches leading to the city were decorated with at least 5,000 yards more. The intermingling of the Stars and Stripes and the green of the trees lining either side of the smooth roadways was a sight that will not soon be forgotten by those who were fortunate enough to witness it.

SPECTATORS ARRIVE.

Early in the morning the guests of the little town from the surrounding neighborhood began to pour in and continued in a steady stream until many hundreds blocked the streets of the town. Delegations from Niles, Irvington, Newark, Alvarado, Pleasanton, Mt. Eden, Decoto, Mission, Livermore, Warm Springs and even from Oakland and San Francisco were present to witness the features of the day.

DAY COMMENCES.

Exactly at sunrise the day's festivities began with the firing of the National salute of twenty-one guns. In lieu of proper ordinance twenty-one anvils were used to make the salute. Immediately thereafter, to the strains of the Star Spangled Banner, the large thirty-foot flag the pride of Centerville, was raised in the center of the town, where it remained unfurled until the sun went down.

MUSIC FURNISHED.

Four brass bands, the Newark, the San Leandro, Masonic Boys' Home, and Stevenson's band early awakened echoes in the town and entertained the arriving visitors with popular airs, until the real demonstration began at 10:30 o'clock.

DAY'S FEATURES.

Aside from a town so small supporting four complete brass bands, the features of the day were numerous. The parade itself was a demonstration well worth going to see. The procession was under the supervision of Grand Marshal C. H. Allen, and was divided into four divisions, each of which was a credit to the zeal of the townsmen. The parade occupied the best portion of the forenoon. In the afternoon the literary program and patriotic exercises began at 1:30 o'clock, after which the exciting races and contests for young and old, with valuable prizes attached were held. When the warmth of the day had subsided, a mock parade, under the captain of the "horribles," was held. The ludicrous was the object sought for, and it was the end attained. At 8 o'clock in the evening the public display of fireworks was held in the public square. The pyrotechnic illuminations were followed by a grand electrical illumination.

The day's festivities were appropriately concluded by a grand ball, which was held in the Town Hall.

THE PARADE.

The parade, with its town floats, school floats, industrial floats and hundreds of decorated carriages, was at least two miles in length, and was the most successful demonstration of the day. The procession formed in front of Supervisor Horner's residence at 10 o'clock.

FIRST DIVISION.

The first division was headed by Grand Marshal C. H. Allen, assisted by P. T. Helwick, C. Agers, J. D. Agers and S. Van Der Voort as aides.

Following the grand marshal were six prominent citizens and pioneers of 1849. They were D. C. Henion, E. W. Hawley, Henry Dusterberry, George M. Smith, William Barry and C. Haley.

Next in the order of the march was the band from Newark. The band was composed of the following: Ed. Tribolet, leader, solo cornet; Chas Cockfair, snare drum; J. Steinhoff, 1st alto; C. Graham, baritone; N. Claxton, first tenor; M. Semas, E flat bass; B. Healey, 3d alto; Roy Smith, 2d alto; J. Murray, 2d cornet; C. Wales, cymbals; Ed. Bust, picalo; J. E. Kelley, clarinet; B. Terrill, solo B cornet; W. Reesinger, 1st cornet; N. Boles, 1st cornet; E. Ingraham, slide trombone; L. Terrill, clarinet; J. Dowling, solo alto; N. Caldiero, bass drum; D. Boles, B flat bass.

After the band came the floats and the private carriages.

DECOTO FLOAT.

The Decoto float contained twenty-four girls, all in white, seated under a canopy of flags and bunting, with palm leaves.

ALVISO FLOAT.

The Alviso school district sent a beautiful float, which contained thirteen young girls, all dressed to represent the thirteen original States. The decorations of the float were patriotic colors, surmounting arches of flowers.

NEWARK FLOAT.

The Newark school float was a very pretty conception. It contained thirty-five young ladies, all dressed in white, each of whom held a Japanese parasol and an American flag. The effect of the gay colors was very much heightened by the oriental design of the float.

NATIVE SONS' FLOAT.

Washington Parlor, No. 169, of the Native Sons, had a very effective float. On the sides was blazoned the old legend "'49 or bust," a bear and the characteristic pick and shovel, and types of the old time miners completed the float.

PORTUGUESE FLOAT.

The American-Portuguese residents of Centerville produced a very handsome float, which represented Lodge 27 of the Three Guardians. Queen Isabel and King Don Carlos of Portugal were represented, with four soldiers, as body guards. There were twelve girls dressed in white, seated beneath the canopy of flags and flowers occupied by the king and queen.

GODDESS OF LIBERTY.

Miss Kate Little, who was chosen to represent the Goddess of Liberty on the occasion, occupied a throne supported on one side by a shield of the American arms, and the American eagle on the other. The canopy under which she sat was composed of American flags and bunting. The float, which was the contribution of the citizens of Centerville, was drawn by four white chargers draped with American flags.

Miss Little made an exquisite goddess. She was dressed in a gown of cream color. In her hand was a trident, around which the American colors were bound. Miss Little's height is above the average, and her purely Grecian caste of features lent much to the beautiful effect of the float.

The float was driven by John T. Stevenson, dressed all in white.

SECOND DIVISION.

The second division was under the charge of W. W. Walton, as aid to the grand marshal. It was headed by the San Leandro band, which was composed as follows:

SAN LEANDRO BAND.

M. J. Bettencourt, leader, cornet; J. Olimpa, E flat cornet; J. A. Bettencourt, cornet; Herbert Skillen, cornet; J. Cordoza, clarinet; A. J. Bettencourt, baritone; J. Cordiro, tuba; A. J. Miller, alto; Wm. Aujust, alto; Joseph Oakes, alto; F. Tratus, slide trombone; J. Holtz, snare drum; Edward Perata, bass drum.

COUNCIL NO. 5.

The first float was that of Council No. 5, of the Portuguese Benevolent Association. It represented Cabrillo, the discoverer of the Pacific Coast. Twelve girls, half of them American, and the other half Portuguese, made the setting for a sail boat, with sails at full mast, representing the courage and daring of the pioneer argonaut.

CENTERVILLE FLOAT.

The Centerville float was composed of thirteen little girls dressed in yellow, representing poppies. The canopy overhead was a light green, and made a charming blend with the children's dresses. From an aesthetic point of view, this was considered one of the most effective of the floats.

Among other floats which attracted attention was that of the Niles vegetable garden. The process of sowing, reaping and turning the soil was represented.

M. H. Lewis' float was that of a small house actually in the process of construction.

The Modern Woodmen of the World had a typical float. Pieces of wood with the accompanying ax were displayed.

BLACKSMITH SHOP.

A blacksmith shop on wheels, with a forge, and two small shetland ponies was the contribution of J. M. Josephs. As an industrial float it would be hard to excell.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

The Father of his Country was represented by a float consisting of Uncle Sam as the driver, and a carriage in which were seated Martha Washington and George Washington.

THIRD DIVISION.

The third division was under the guidance of Eugene Stevenson, and was headed by the Stevenson band, of which the following are members.

Albert Steveneson, leader; C. Cline, solo cornet; E. Pinkert, 1st cornet; H. Duckett, alto; B. Swain, alto; Frank Lincoln, tuba; F. Lepos, clarinet; Chas. Avis, piccolo; Jos. Blake, trombone; Ed. Stevenson, trombone; F. Tuninson, snare drum; A. Bennett, bass drum.

Among the private carriages in the third division, that of Mrs. E. Usler was pronounced the most effective. It was draped in purple, and contained seven young ladies, all dressed in white, with cream-colored parasols.

After Mrs. Usler's carriage there were at least a hundred carriages, gaily decorated.

FOURTH DIVISION.

The fourth division was led by the boys' band of the Masonic Home. First were the Christian Endeavors on bicycles, bearing the banner of their organization.

Then followed a cavalcade of horseback riders an their gaily decorated steeds.

The end of the procession was brought up by Master Benjamin Dusterberry, driving a handsome St. Bernard dog, and Master Lester Burdick, controlling a goat, who, for the occassion was bedecked in patriotic colors, which he attempted to eat from time to time.

He was followed by Mrs. Julia E. Straven, who read a poem. C. C. Henion read the Declaration of Independence. The meeting was brought to a close by the Hon. Jas. W. Clark, the orator of the day. BURGLARS AND VANDALS WORK IN HAYWARDS.

Take Cash and Wreck Two Valuable Slot Machines.

TALCOTT CLUB MEETS MONDAY NIGHT.

HAYWARDS, July 5.—One of the most daring robberies ever committed in this place occurred at an early hour yesterday morning when the Haywards Saloon, on Castro street, was entered.

A small amount of cash was taken, but two slot machines were destroyed, and a reward is offered for the conviction of the burglars.

The burglars effected an entrance to the basement of the saloon through a window at the rear of the building. From the basement they found it impossible to break through the door into the barroom. They then went to the outside rear door, which they pried open with an old spade which they had found in the yard. Gaining an entrance to the rear room of the saloon, the burglars found another door through which they were compelled to force their way to reach the main room. To effect an entrance to this room the men used a heavy iron bar. They broke in the panel of the door, after which it was an easy matter to reach through and unlatch the door. In accomplishing their last entrance a great deal of noise must have been made by the men. The manner in which it escaped notice is accounted for by the presence of a number of blank cartridge shells which were found strewn about the front entrance to the saloon the next morning.

After reaching the barroom the men proceeded to break into the two slot machines, both of which they totally wrecked. The machines were crushed in from the rear with the heavy iron bar that had been used to break the door.

From the slot machines the burglars secured only about $7, and, evidently displeased with the small amount, they proceeded to ruin the mechanism of the machines. The heavy bar was inserted, and while the revolvers were pried outside the wheels and springs of the slot machines were twisted out of shape. One of the machines was owned by a company, the other by the owner of the saloon, John Silva.

Before leaving the place, the robbers made a careful search of the establishment.

From a small drawer they took several dollars in silver, but from all appearances no liquors were carried off.

The robbery was not discovered until 6 o'clock yesterday morning, when Silva opened the saloon. He says that the two machines destroyed are valued at $225, and that some $30 worth of damage was caused by the breaking in of the doors. He says also that he will give $100 for the arrest and conviction of the robbers and miscreants.

Takes Poison and Lands in a Cell in the County Jail.

MRS. KLONE'S ESCAPE FROM INJURY.

SAN LEANDRO, July 5.—Joe Matoso, the sixteen-year-old "boy terror" of this place, was arrested recently upon the complaint of J. Cunha, who claims that the lad pointed a loaded shotgun at his head and threatened to shoot him. Cunha also claims that the boy attempted to take poison while in his (Cunha's) house.

Matoso was taken to the county jail pending an investigation of his case, as it is thought by some that he is mentally unbalanced. He has been subject to peculiar spells, at which times he is said to act very strangely.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Mrs. A. Kline, a resident of San Lorenzo, narrowly escaped serious injury in an accident which occurred here Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Kline was seated in her buggy, which was standing in front of Joseph Herrscher's store, when the horse attached to the buggy became frightened and backed the vehicle into a heavy dray. The buggy was upset and Mrs. Kline was thrown violently to the ground. She was dragged out of the way and carried into Herrscher's store before she received further injury beneath the feet of the frightened horses. Mrs. Kline was bruised from having fallen on the hard road. She was later taken to her home in a carriage.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

VOICE FROM WILDERNESS AT THE DEWEY THEATER.

Manager Stevens Plans For a Big Performance Next Week—Plays in San Francisco—Theatrical Notes.

At the Dewey theatre to-night, the last magnificent performance of "The Gladiator," with Robert Downing in the title role, will be given.

The play has been drawing immensely and there will be another packed house this evening.

To-morrow night the great biblical play, "The Voice from the Wilderness," which was originally produced at the Central theatre in San Francisco, several months ago, and which was witnessed by thousands and thousands of people, will be put on the boards.

No piece was ever presented in this State which required a greater outlay of money. Months were required to design and paint scenery, make costumes and conduct rehearsals, and the result was a run which was remunerative in the extreme, while the impressive effect was elevating and enduring. Robert Downing played the part of John the Baptist in the production in San Francisco, and he will appear in the same role here. The piece will be staged in a manner which will arouse the enthusiasm of the auditors and draw a large audience every night next week.

Mr. Downing will be supported by the full stock company of the Dewey theatre and a host of supernumaries specially engaged.

Robert Downing has had a remarkable career. His stage training, previous to his starring tours, was one that fitted him to succeed in the higher walks of the drama. He began as a call boy in John T. Ford's theatre, Washington, and played every position with the splendid stock company maintained at that house until he became its leading man. Then he supported Edwin Booth, at the latter's request, during an engagement in New York. Next he was leading support for Mary Anderson, and after that played opposite parts to Joseph Jefferson. After this all-round experience he started out for himself, and his success is too well known to go into detail here. Mr. Downing has over twenty-five classical and standard plays in his repertoire, in the seventeen years of his starring tour he has always produced from one to two new plays every year.

Seats should be secured early.

"THE CHRISTIAN" COMES TO THE GRAND OPERA.

The last week of the Maude Fealy and Edward Morgan engagement at the Grand Opera House begins next Monday evening, when a grand production of Hall Caine's great play "The Christian" will be presented. The tremendous vogue of Hall Caine as a novelist, the appearance of Maude Fealy as Glory Quayle, and Edward Morgan as John Strom, all lend unusual interest to the production. In the book Mr. Caine had a set and defined purpose. For the play he took the two principal characters in the book, as well as the motive of their relation to each other, and made an independent drama of new incidents and fresh surroundings, just as he might have taken two characters from history and constructed about them a play which could otherwise have no claim to historical truth. This is the distinction that Mr. Caine personally makes between the book and the play.

"THE IDOL'S EYE" ROLLS AT THE TIVOLI OPERA HOUSE.

"The Idol's Eye" will cease its shining after next week, and those who have not visited the Tivoli and seen this pretty opera can not do better than to call around and hear the delightful music, and laugh at the clever commedians. Hartman has a grist of new jokes and verses for the closing week, and everybody enjoys the work of Cashman, Cunningham and Webb, and the singing of Frances Graham, Annie Meyers and Sybil Page.

CENTRAL GIVES "SUNSHINE OF PARADISE ALLEY."

"The Sins of a Night" has been doing an immense business at the Central treatre this week. It will be removed Monday night and the attractive piece "Sunshine of Paradise Alley" will be put on in its stead. This is a play which has been built upon very pleasant lines and will prove one of the greatest successes of the season.

"ZAZA" STILL DRAWS AT ALCAZAR THEATRE.

For four weeks Florence Roberts has been playing "Zaza" at the Alcazar theatre, and during that time the house has been crowded nightly. The same play will be kept on the boards all next week.

NOTES OF PLAYS, PLAYERS AND NOTED PLAYWRIGHTS.

Frohman and Grau, encouraged by their successes in London, have gone to Paris to arrange for an extensive season of French drama and opera bouffe in England and America in 1903.

Frohman will go from Paris to Berne where Clyde Fitch is being treated for appendicitis. From Berne he will go to Berlin to negotiate for a theatre for the production of French, English and American successes.

Tom B. Davis, who produced "Florodora," has contracted with Owen Hall and Sidney Jones, authors of "The Geisha," to write a new musical comedy for him.

Frohman has arranged an American tour for Mrs. Langtry. She will appear in repertoire, and if Fitch recovers he will write her a new and sensational play.

Olive May, who was the immensely clever soubrette with "Arizona," has gone over to the Frohman forces. She will have the title role in New York in "The Country Mouse." This is a witty comedy by Arthur Law.

Last year's report that Sarah Bernhard and Maude Adams would be seen as joint stars in "Romeo and Juliet" has been given out again with more details. According to the new story the production will be made next October. Mme. Bernhardt will be the Romeo and Miss Adams the Juliet. The stars will speak French, the rest of the company English.

Aubrey Boucicault sailed last Wednesday for England to consult regarding a play for which he is in negotiation. Should the play prove suitable, Mr. Boucicault may star in it here next season. He will return to this country in about six weeks.

According to the latest information George Ade and William Lorraine have signed articles with Henry W. Savage to collaborate on a musical comedy to be produced by Savage within the next year. The name of the piece has not yet been chosen, but much of the book has been sketched by the Chicago humorist, and Lorraine has a few melodies which he thinks are suited to this effort. Ade and Lorraine met the other day for the purpose of talking business with Col. Savage. Lorraine is engaged at Atlantic City, conducting his musical comedy, "A Trip to Buffalo," which is being produced there under the direction of Charles Salisbury. Ade is well known as author of "Fables in Slang," as well as the librettist of "The Sultan of Sulu," which enjoyed a run at the Illinois theatre, Chicago, this spring. Lorraine is the composer of one of the most popular musical numbers of the last few years, "Salome." His "A Trip to Buffalo" was his first plunge into musical comedy.

L. J. Rodriguez, for many years acting manager for Miss Julia Marlowe, has closed a contract with Clay Clement by which he is to make an elaborate revival of Mr. Clement's comedy, "The New Dominion," in Boston during the coming season. The author will again be seen in the role of Baron von Hohenstauffen, of which he was in a double sense the creator. The play has proved popular in seasons past, especially in Chicago, whither it came on "rubbers," in the theatrical parlance, and where it literally served to make Clay Clement locally famous in a night. It has never been adequately produced in the East, and Manager Rodriguez expects to make his revival of it a theatrical event of genuine importance from the point of view of both caste and investiture. The piece will be put on for a run and already the artists are at work on the scenery. This revival will form an important feature of Mr. Clement's forthcoming season, and in addition to it he will produce his new biblical play, "David, the King," in which he will be seen in the role of Absolom.

Concerning the new musical production, "Wizard of Oz," produced for the first time in Chicago, Monday, the Record-Herald says: "Nothing quite so gorgeous has been achieved in this city since the days of the Henderson extravaganzas, and the wizard has the advantage of being more modern and original in tone and treatment without sacrificing any benefits that arise from a captivating fairy tale. In place of Blue Beard, Aladin and pretty Cinderella, the author, Frank Baum, selected Dorothy, a dainty little Kansas maiden, as the heroine of his tale, and in sorrounding her with such novel creations as the scarecrow, the tin woodman, the wizard of Oz and the cowardly lion, he developes a story which is unhackneyed and fascinating.

The concert opened with an overture by Suppe, for four hands, which was excellently rendered on the fine Steinway by Mr. Haesters and Mrs. Seller. This was followed by both vocal and instrumental solos, duets, and recitations, all of which were of highly artistic merit. SALADS FOR LUNCHEON.

The luncheon table of spring and summer must be cool, light and inviting. Small glass dishes placed at the corners of the table now hold well selected sprigs of watercress, which is to be nibbled in the place of radishes. The salads show some strong note of color. A bright-toned salad is composed of small, well shaped tomatoes, stuffed with an equal mixing of white celery and apples cut in very small pieces. A good deal of sugar is added to the mayonnaise dressing of such a salad, and it rests also abundantly as an upper crust below the replaced lid of the tomato. The most delightful salad at present is the fruit salad, served in a scooped-out pineapple. In its making all the seasonable fruits are cut finely, covered rather generously with maraschino and then let to remain some time in the husk of the pineapple. The strong, delicious odor of this fruit permeates the whole contents, and when served very cold the salad forms one of the truly pleasing novelties of the spring.

IN WAR TIMES.

STORY OF A MAN WHO HELPED MAKE HISTORY.

He Fought in the Famous Seventeenth Indiana Volunteers—Some of His Experiences.

From the beginning to the end of the Civil War none fought more valliantly than the famous Seventeenth Indiana volunteers. The story of their battles, their privations and their victories is a long but interesting one.

In company B, of this regiment, was Eli Fisher, now a resident of Jet, Woods Co., Okla., who has a fund of entertaining reminiscenses of his experiences in bivouac and battle. To a reporter the other day he related the following:

"In 1864," he said, "while serving with my company, I began to suffer with various complaints brought on by hardship and exposure. I had hemorrhages of the kidneys, palpitation of the heart and at times I would bloat from stomach trouble. My lungs were also affected. From my suffering and misery I became nervous and my nerves finally went all to pieces.

"I became forgetful and distracted in mind and it seemed that there could be nothing which would bring me relief. I was treated in Atlanta, Ga., by the regimental doctor but did not get any better. In 1865 I was mustered out and then tried other doctors. At various times five different physicians treated me and I took many kinds of medicine but nothing did me any good. From 1887 until 1890 I was confined to my bed most of the time and my case seemed hopeless.

"But in 1890 I read in a newspaper of how an Iowa man, suffering from the same illness in general as I had, was cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I decided to see what they would do for me and began taking them. I used three boxes of the pills before experiencing relief, but after that my recovery was rapid. In two months I felt like a new man both in body and mind. I took them for four months and was perfectly cured.

"I have recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People many times. I do so, because I know from personal experience that they have wonderful power to relieve and cure the sick."

The pills which cured Mr. Fisher have accomplished hundreds of equally remarkable cures. They are on sale at all drug-stores or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

MANGLED BY EXPLOSION OF GIANT CRACKER.

T. P. Brophy's Temerity Cause the Loss of Fingers.

BOY SHOOTS A WAD INTO HIS KNEE.

FRUITVALE, July 5.—T. P. Brophy, an old man who resides at the Teller House at Melrose, recently met with a serious accident while firing giant firecrackers.

Mr. Brophy was holding a large lighted firecracker in his hand, and before he could throw it to the ground, the cracker exploded, frightfully mangling his right hand. The thumb was nearly torn from the hand, while all the fingers were badly torn and burned. So serious were his injuries that it was found necessary to amputate the first joint of the thumb and the first and second fingers. The operation was performed by Dr. Daniel Crosby of High street.

SHOT IN THE KNEE.

Yesterday Willie Tumling, a boy who resides on the San Leandro road, between High street and Seminary avenue, shot himself in the knee with a blank cartridge just to see if it would hurt. The paper wad went through the lad's clothing and penetrated the flesh to the depth of about half an inch. Dr. Daniel Crosby removed the wad from the boy's knee. He states that the wound, though painful, is not liable to prove serious.

MRS. GARNER DEAD.

Mrs. Z. H. Garner died at the home of her son, H. Garner, of Peralta avenue, Thursday evening. She leaves two sons and a daughter.

A Startling Surprise.

Very few could believe in looking at A. H. Hoadley, a healthy, robust blacksmith of Tilden, Ind., that for ten years he suffered such tortures from Rheumatism as few could endure and live. But a wonderful change followed his taking Electric Bitters. "Two bottles wholly cured me," he writes, "and I have not felt a twinge in over a year." They regulate the Kidneys, purify the blood and cure Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Nervousness, improve digestion and give perfect health. Try them. Only 50 cts. at Osgood Bros' drug store, Seventh and Broadway.

Procuring Eligible Husbands for Old Maids

Finding eligible husbands for old maids and exercising general supervision over matchmaking with a far-seeing, kindly eye is a novel form of philanthropy that would not appeal to many persons because of the wide range of disastrous possibilities it involves. Yet there is a woman in New York who is well-to-do and who finds herself with plenty of time on her hands, who devotes a good deal of energy and much money to this peculiar work. She calls it philanthropy, pure and simple, and emphatically denies the allegation of superficial acquaintances that she is a "crank." Furthermore, she resents the inference that she possesses an inordinate passion matchmaking.

MANY YEARS AGO.

"Many years ago," she says, in explaining her unique philanthropy, "I was deeply impressed by a psychological study of a convincing type which I came across while reading a novel. I found in this book an impressive description of the sense of abject loneliness that bore down a poor unmarried woman, and I was fascinated by the depressing situation, for at that time I was engaged to marry the man I loved and could not look ahead into the future and see much happiness in store for me. I easily imagined myself in that girl's position, and the picture haunted me so persistently that I at once became intensely interested in the general subject of old-maids. That is why I have devoted so much of my time to the rather hazardous work, if it may be called work, of finding congenial companions for lonely women who are approaching the meridian of life with absolutely no matrimonial prospects."

ENERGETIC WOMAN.

This energetic woman has not contented herself merely with making matches, but has gone deeper into the subject of marriage and has studied it from the point of view of phychologist. In the first place she has discovered, with many others, that there are a thousand and one reasons why some girls remain unmarried, and, what is even more surprising, she is convinced that plain looks are by no means the most frequent cause. This is shown by the great number of old maids who possess what might really be termed pretty, attractive faces and graceful well founded figures.

"One woman for whom I have been trying to find a husband was by far the prettiest of my acquaintances," she says. "She did not look to be more than 25, although she frequently admitted to me that she was past 40. Hers was an unusually sad case. In spite of her good looks men never lost an opportunity to shun her, and after studying her I learned that this was due to a certain effect of melancholy pride and mystery which her face and manner produced. When I first met this woman she excited my curiosity, and after many futile attempts I finally discovered that she had once been in love.

"And the remarkable feature of the case was that her love was returned in full measure. But she belonged to that rather numerous type of women who are doubters of themselves, and she could not make up her mind whether she loved the young man enough to marry him. She constantly questioned the depth of her affections and the result of this persistent burrowing was that she found new evidence all the time that she was right.

HER LOVER.

"Her lover was of an exactly opposite type. He was a matter-of-fact, level-headed fellow, too busy with the affairs of the world to pry into his own soul, so he really did not know what the object of his affections was talking about when she expressed her doubts. He wanted the wedding day set, but she shook her head pensively and confessed her fear that after the wedding she might regret it and discover that a mistake had been made. He reasoned with her, pleaded with her, and argued, but all to no effect. She still questioned herself, and the result was that the engagement was broken off and the young man married another girl. When it was too late she discovered that she was desperately in love with the man, and when she saw him the husband of another woman she became almost insane with jealousy.

"Years passed and she recovered somewhat from the direct shock of the marriage, but her face has always retained the sad, pensive expression it bore during the first three or four years of the married man's life. She confessed to me once that she made no pretense to being true to the memory of her first love. 'I never think of it,' she said, 'except as a pretty book I seem to have read. But I feel all alone in the world, and the thought of remaining lonely as long as I live terrifies me. You don't know how awful it is. There seems to be a gulf between me and my most intimate friends. I long for some one who will make this gulf impossible.'

"I was interested in this proud, super-sensitive creature, and I drew from her a promise that she would marry any man whom I might find who could make her happy. I did my best, but my efforts were not crowned with success. The men I knew all shrank from her. They all admitted that she was beautiful, but characterized her beauty as the sort men like to admire but not to marry. Still I did not give up all hopes of finding the right man, until some time later she took sick and died. This was one of the most pathetic cases that ever came under my notice.

"But in spite of the sad fate of the friend I have just mentioned there is a good deal of truth in the statement that a woman's face is her fortune. And it doesn't necessarily follow that it must be a pretty face, either. The face frequently possesses other attractive qualifications besides beauty. I found an example of this sort in one of the old maids I married off at the age of 36. I captured a well-to-do German who for many years had been taking all of his meals at a restaurant, and after I introduced him to the woman in question he remarked:

ANOTHER TYPE OF WOMAN.

"'This woman's face speaks to me of home-made coffee cake and home-made everything; just what I am longing for.'

"There is another kind of woman whose good looks improve with age, and this is no small consideration when it comes to finding husbands for old maids. Frequently a girl who is generally considered homely ceases to be looked upon in this light when she becomes an old maid. There are faces which seem suited to no other status of life. As an illustration, I once knew a girl of 20 who had the features of an unmarried woman of 40. Naturally, she did not attract young men. At 25 she still looked 40, and did not seem to be getting old at all. Now, when this girl really reaches 40 she probably will be accounted a good-looking woman of middle age, and no doubt she will be much sought after by bachelors ten or twenty years her senior.

"Frequently a girl does not marry because she has an older sister who from choice or necessity remains in single blessedness. Oftentimes, as I have observed, a young woman rejects suitors because she happens to be left as the sole companion of a widwed mother. I recall one case of this character which impressed me deeply. A pretty young girl sacrificed all of her matrimonial chances to the interests of her mother, and the characteristic part of it was that the daughter never ceased reminding the parent of the fact. The two quarreled continually, and frequently they would let a whole month pass without speaking to each other. Yet at the bottom of her heart the young woman was really devoted to her mother and would not leave her. Several times the old woman insisted that her daughter should accept the proposal, but the latter always refused. Thus they quarreled back and forth until finally the old woman died, and I succeeded in marrying the girl to a prosperous Swede. And they get along quite well together."—Chicago Tribune.

SONGS FOR THE WOMEN — POETRY — SONG FOR EDWARD OF OLD

A SONG.

We break the glass, whose sacred wine
To some beloved health we drain,
Lest future pledges, less divine,
Should e'er the hallowed toy profane.
And thus I broke a heart, that poured
Its tide of feeling out for thee,
In draughts, by after-time deplored,
Yet dear to memory.

But still the old impassioned ways,
And habits of my mind remain,
And still unhappy light displays
Thine imag, chambered in my brain.
And still it looks as when the hours
Went by like flights of singing birds,
Or that soft chain of spoken flowers,

—Edward Coate Pinckney.

"GOD SAVE THE KING" IN THE TIME OF LAST KING EDWARD.

The song sung at the Conduit in Cornhill on the occasion of the passage of King Edward VI through London, from the Tower to Westminster, on February 19, 1546-7, preparatory to his coronation on the day after:

King Edward, King Edward,
God save King Edward.
GAd save King Edward.
King Edward the Sixth!
To have the Sword,
His subjects to defend,
His Enemies to put downe.
According to Right, in every Towne.
And long to continue
In Grace and Virtue,
Unto God's Pleasure
His Commons to rejoice!
Whom we ought to honor, to love and to dread
As our most noble King
And soveraigne Lord,
Next under God of England and Ireland the Supreme Head
Whom God hath chosen
By His Mercy so good.
Good Lord! in Heaven to Theo we sing.
Grant our noble King to reigne and springe,
From Age to Age,
Like Solomon the Sage,
Whom God preserve in Peace and Warre,

—London Graphic.

LITTLE NEW LOVE.

Oh, little new Love, come take my hand,
There's a white moon over the lea,
And I know a way where the roses sway
And a path where there's none to see.
"But how do you know the way we go?"
Said little new Love to me.

Oh, little new Love, I've a word to say
That's as tender as word may be,
And a tale to repeat that is old and sweet
And as true as eternity.
"But why do you tell the tale so well?"
Said little new Love to me.

Oh, little new Love, when spring is fair
And the heart of a man beats high,
Each maid may learn in her own sweet turn
The secret of "how" and "why."
But the dust must stay over yesterday.
To little new Love and I.

—Theodocia Garrison in Life.

SONNET.

'Twas ever thus—each soul is armed by Fate
With thronging possibilities of good and ill:
Her face is fair I love, and yet a spark
Of hidden lightning shows where clouds may be:
Within the shadow of those eyes so dark
May lurk another spirit few can see—
One that I fear. And yet I know that love
And kindness rule that life with ready hand;
Tho' lightning, striking from the clouds above,
May mar the fairest castles man has planned,
Yet doubt I not what good I know to be,

—Sarah P. Byrnes.

UNLAURELED.

I knew the crags were thunder-swept and blown
By storms of sleet, the paths were overgrown
With thorns and brambles, yet I set my face
To Fame, and trod the stony way alone.
Not for myself I sought the unknown prize,
But that I might seem worthy in the eyes
Of those who loved me; finding thus, I thought,
Full recompense for any sacrifice.

But all in vain I toiled through thorns and snares
And gained the wreath awaiting him who dares
I bow my throbbing temples to the dust

—Katherine La Farge Norton.

GROWING OLD.

But my divining lamp is broke, whereby
I used to know
That all with me would yet be well
However thick the shadows fell;
Hope, was it? Have it so.

The gift of tongue is mine no more, to find strange words and sweet
To tell my grieving heart alway
The joy that died with yesterday
Tomorrow will repeat.

Time winnows out the grain in husk;
What need of lamps to light the dusk,
Or tongues—when one must sleep?

—Grace MacGowan Cooke.

JUST JINGLES.

She gave me the daintiest glove,
And highly I prized it, I trow;
Yet fickle and false is my love,
And little I care for it now.

She gave me the daintiest glove—
Not long did the present elate.
Today I discovered my love
Had given another its mate.

THE BIBLE.

The Bible is an ample book,
A forest with large room to stray in;
The churches changed it to a coop
For cocks to crow and hens to lay in.

If they should stray, like many a sinner,
Through the wild wood, might find a fox

—Day-Book of John Stuart Blackie.

LIFE'S MIRROR.

There are loyal hearts, there are spirits brave,
There are souls that are pure and true;
Then give to the world the best you have,
And the best will come back to you.

Give love, and love to your life will flow,
A strength in your utmost need;
Have faith, and a score of hearts will show
Their faith in your word and deed.

Give truth, and your gift will be paid in kind,
And honor will honor meet;
And a smile that is sweet will surely find
A smile that is just as sweet.

For life is the mirror of king and slave;
'Tis just what we are and do:
Then give to the world the best you have,
And the best will come back to you.

—Madeline S. Bridges.

LOST.

Above the wind and the rain
I hear the tremulous roar
Of the city—a human main
That breaks on an iron shore.

Listen! was that a shout
Inborne on the tempest's breath?
Or the cry of a soul dragged out
To drown in the depths of death?

—Charles Henry Luders.

NOT AS I WILL.

Blindfolded and alone I stand
With unknown threshholds on each hand;
The darkness deepens as I grope,
Afraid to fear, afraid to hope;
Yet this one thing I learn to know
Each day more surely as I go,
That doors are opened, ways are made,
Burdens are lifted or are laid,
By some great law unseen and still,
Unfathomed purposes to fulfill,
"Not as I will."

Blindfolded and alone I wait;
Loss seems too bitter, gain too late;
Too heavy burdens in the load
And too few helpers on the road;
And joy is weak and grief is strong,
And years and days so long, so long.
Yet this one thing I learn to know,
Each day more surely as I go,
That I am glad the good and ill
By changeless law are ordered still,
"Not as I will."

"Not as I will;" the sound grows sweet
Each time my lips the words repeat.
"Not as I will;" the darkness feels
More safe than light when this thought steals
Like whispered voice to calm and bless
All unrest and all loneliness.
"Not as I will," because the One
Who loved us first and best has gone
Before us on the road, and still
For us must all His love fulfill.
"Not as we will."

—Helen Hunt.

MUSIC.

Soft as a flash of Summer light,
A thrill of music sweet
Breathed somewhat in the ear of Night
And died along the street.

Gray Night, it said, from amorous tongue,
From minstrel, and from bird,
Since first thy heaven with stars was hung
What carols thou hast heard!

If only we could call the ghost
Of each forgotten strain!
If all the silver-sounding host
Made melody again!

If every song whose magic made
Yon stars more deeply burn,
Then fled and withered like a shade
Could like a shade return!
I who would bid the lovely stay,
I who would bind the fair;
Even as I plead I pass away,
And go I know not where.

—Richard Garnett.

NOTES GATHERED to PLEASE the WOMEN

A remark recently made in a French daily deserves to be discussed in this age of collections and feminine influence. Women, it is averred, are true lovers of fine arts; they can admire and criticise paintings, but they seldom, however wealthy, feel inclined to buy any, and still less to hoard them up in a special gallery. In Paris, Mmes. de Bearn, Esnault-Peltrie, P. Bureau, and a few others, are about the only ladies visiting art sale rooms for the purpose of securing some treasures of the brush of the old or new school on view. It would, indeed, be interesting to hear the experience of the other art dealers on the matter. The list of lady collectors of curios and bibelots is a lengthy one. This contrast or preference is easily accounted for by the inate desire of women to please, and hence to form a suitable shrine to their own personality. Priceless diamonds, rare lace and jewels, unique pieces of furniture, make part and parcel, so to speak, of the ordinary surroundings of ladies. They stand as a proper setting to their beauty, style, temperament and clearly indicate their refined taste, bent of mind and thought of the beloved ones.

Pictures with but a few exceptions, distract the attention of visitors, and are apt to suggest unfavorable comparisons. To be seen at their best they require special light, and a room built for their reception, which comes more within the master's domain than the mistress's. Small articles, on the contrary, need no such great outlay or trouble. They are mostly arranged by the lady of the house, according to the space at disposal and her own fancy, and now and again a few alterations are made to suit the particular whim of the hour, so as to bring a constant change and break the monotony of always seeing the same things in the same place. This quaint tout ensemble contributes to the pleasure and comfort of the whole family and friends, connoisseurs or not, whilst a gallery of paintings representing generally large fortunes, serves after all to the real delectation of comparatively but a few dilettanti. On such home and art tendencies of the epoch opinions, as usual, vastly differ. Discussion on the matter should be favored if only to give to varied interpretations from those in the know, and who occasionally bring forward some delicate point unthought of and yet worthy of attention.

MODERN COLLEGE GIRLS.

Prof. Katharine Lee Bates of Wellesley, writing to the Boston Transcript, contrasts the college girl of to-day with the one of twenty years ago.

Then the college girl was an exception in her community. She was usually the daughter of a struggling country minister, a missionary or a lecturer—that is to say, she came from a household of plain living and high thinking. "She was stoop shouldered, perhaps, and deficient in social ease, but she took her mind seriously."

To-day, Prof. Bates finds the college girl in the merry foreground of the student world, going to college for "the life." She is well gowned, athletic, radiant. She is free from morbidness and is not frightened over religious doubts. She will be less easily imposed upon than her mother by quackery in print or on the platform.

In other words, to put it briefly, the college girl of the period thinks in her heart that youth, beauty, charm, the genius for affairs, are the points that count for a woman in the world. All of which means that college life does not tend to destroy the "eternally womanly," but is developing a new and most interesting type of it.

Prof. Bates speaks with regret of certain conditions in our women's colleges as less favorable to mental activity than those existing twenty years ago. But it is doubtful whether conditions for mental activity were better then than now, unless one limits those conditions to incentives which come from books alone.

There is to-day a mental stimulus in the air which no one can escape. The press, the pulpit, as well as the school, make vastly greater demands on the intelligence than they did twenty years ago.

The result is a broader range of intellectual activity and a closer hold on life rather than on the written page. The college girl is right in believing she will find "life" in the university instead of mere letters, and it is exactly this "life" which has transformed the college girl from the bookworm she may have been twenty years ago to the brilliant individual she is to-day, ready for social and intellectual affairs, and ready, if need be, to make her own way in the world on creditable line.

BETTER BE SINCERE.

In reading, as in anything else, honesty is the best policy. It is better to be sincere than to get the reputation of knowing all the books. A good many people seem to feel that it is not quite respectable to be ignorant of the book everybody is talking about; and a good many people, it is feared, assume a knowledge they do not possess simply because they have not the courage to be frank. In a democracy people like to go with the crowd; that is one of our perils. We are too compliant, too eager to be with the majority, too ready to surrender our individual independence. Our public men are too eager to know what we want them to do, and too indifferent to their ideas of what ought to be done; and their constituents are equally eager to fall in with the latest fashion and keep "in the swim." An eminent English statesman, well known by reputation in this country, once calmly confessed that he had never read "Hamlet" and did not even know the plot! The man was extremely well informed in his own field, but cared nothing for literature, and was serenely indifferent to the immense vogue of Shakespeare. A good many people read books for which they do not care simply because other people are reading those books, which is a waste of time; and a good many people read reviews of books, instead of reading the books themselves, to be able to talk about them, which is not quite honest.

MARRYING PEDAGOGUES.

A paper in Manila publishes extracts taken from the log of the transport ship Thomas, which conveyed the last lot of school teachers to the Philippines. We quote: "There were 600 teachers on board, 160 of them women. Some are mere girls; others merely girlish. All are bound for the Philippines. Thirty couples petitioned the captain to-day to permit them to be married on board. He refused, and they reluctantly agreed to wait until they got to Honolulu to be married."

FOR SUMMER EVENINGS.

The summer evening gown is indispensable to the average woman's wardrobe, and fortunately for her it is not necessary that it should be made either of expensive material or trimmed elaborately, this season's styles requiring only inexpensive and diaphanous materials and lace trimmings to produce the most picturesque effects. Lace is the predominant note in clothes this summer, and is no longer regarded as a trimming only.

CROWNING A QUEEN.

There is quite a little difference between the ceremonies attending the coronation of Queen Consorts and those in connection with the crowning of reigning sovereigns. Thus, while both are annointed with the holy chrism and invested with the crown, the words accompanying these acts differ. When the crown is placed on the head of the Queen Consort it is called "the crown of glory, honor and joy," but not "the crown of supreme power," and in the same way the sacred oil is described as "destined to increase her honors," but not to "set her apart for dominion."

THE HOUSE OF THE SKULL.

Wardly Hall, six miles from Bolton, England, dates from about the time of Henry VI. In the staircase was a recess containing a skull, supposed to belong to Roger Downes, a royster in Charles II.'s time, and Wardley Hall became known as the Skull house, as, according to the legend, whenever the skull was removed from its resting place trouble would befall the inmates of the dwelling. On one occasion the relic was lost in the moat, which had to be dragged for its recovery.

THE FUNNY BOYS.

Sunday School Teacher—"Why did Noah go into the ark?"

Bright Pupil — "Probably because somebody had borrowed his umbrella."

A mother was teaching her 5-year-old son to repeat the Lord's prayer, and got as far as "Give us this day our daily bread," when the little fellow stopped and said: "Mamma, shall I ask for butter and jam on it?"

A north side dentist recently took his son, aged 4, to see a new baby sister. After gazing at the new arrival in silence a few moments, the little observer said: "Papa, who is going to pay you to make her a set of teeth?"

INTENTIONAL.

The boy was sitting on the pavement crying bitterly.

"How did it happen?" asked a sympathetic gentleman who chanced to be passing.

"It d-didn't," said the boy, "f'ather done it on purpose."—Tit-Bits.

COOKS AND HAPPINESS

More marriages are brought about by music and moonlight than the world dreams of, and more marriages are spoiled by careless cooking and cold roast pork than by cooling affections or lack of love.

Novelists write a great deal about broken hearts and blighted hopes, and the world weeps over the pathos and pity of the whole business. But how many people are there in the world with a tear to shed for the ruined digestion that is at the root of the whole trouble?

A large proportion of housekeepers, doubtless misled by the apparently cast iron digestions of their younger brothers, entertain the idea that all men are endowed with constitutions of a dust destructor, which can consume tin cans, old umbrellas, and coal ashes with equal impartiality.

How many mothers, sisters and wives there are who will retire to bed with a clear conscience, leaving out a supper to be consumed by their late returning mankind, consisting of such items as potted lobster, cold veal, cold suet pudding, apples, cheese and cold pancakes?

Such a meal, consumed between the hours of 11 P. M. and 1 A. M., is as surely calculated to produce death, sooner or later, as a diet of sawdust and tenpenny nails. Yet they wonder why Harry or Dick or Charley is so difficult to rouse, and so cross the following morning, not dreaming that the unfortunate youth in question has naturally been spending a night of terror with an imaginary stake driven through his chest, whilst he has been chased through streets of houses without shops or doorways by herds of green cows in firemen's helmets?

Is it humanly possible for him to be kind and considerate and chatty at the breakfast table after such a night, when his head feels like a concertina, weighs as heavily on his chest as though he had swallowed it in its native can, label and all?

History has revealed that the great Napoleon practically missed his chances at the battle of Leipsic through having partaken too freely of a leg of mutton stuffed with onions.

It was doubtless cooked badly, and affords us a terrible example of the far reaching results of bad cooking.

WHAT MAKES THEM LIKED.

"I wish I knew what makes a girl popular!" is an ejaculation one often hears sighed forth by young society women, all of whom are naturally anxious to score a success in the social world.

Of course, as every one realizes, popularity is an intangible quality, and it is difficult to analyze the exact reason why one individual is a persona grata in exery assemblage, and why another, who makes even more effort to please, is less considered.

Still, there are certain persons who are naturally pleasing, yet fail to make the best of themselves.

To such a little advice might be helpful, and, therefore, the views of a woman of experience on the subject are given.

It is a great mistake to depreciate one's own powers of attraction either to oneself or to others; the former renders you constrained and self-conscious in your manners, and, as people are very apt to take you at your own valuation, it is equally bad to run oneself down to others.

This is far removed from conceit, which of course, is odious.

HELSTON FLORA DAY.

The old, old sprig festival, known in the west of England as the "Helston Flora Day," was duly celebrated on the eighth of the merrie month, with all the old time observances. Of such hoary antiquity is this custom of dancing in the spring that its actual origin is a moot question. One tradition says *that the "Furry Dance" commemor*ates the day when the straggling little hamlet, which stood where the town of Helston stands today, was miraculously preserved from harm when a fiery serpent passed through the place; another and a more probable version being that the day was kept as a time of thanksgiving to the fair goddess of flowers, and of joy in her handiwork in covering the earth with verdure and bloom after the chill time of winter. Anyway, it is certain that the prehistoric custom dates back to a period prior to the coming of the Irish missionaries, who brought Christianity to Cornwall, and it is always religiously observed each year upon the 8th of May.

At midday, Helston sends out all its youth and beauty to greet the spring, the men wearing gay buttonholes, the maidens their prettiest frocks and chapeaux. At the Corn Exchange (gaily dressed with flowers and bunting), the couples who are to join in the dance assemble. All the line of route taken by the "furry dancers" is decorated, and lined with spectators of all ranks, for the dancers are people of standing and position in the duchy, and this year there were twenty couples who danced to the quaint old tune, tripping through houses and gardens, in at the front door and out at the back, along roadways and streets, and back again to the Corn Exchange to luncheon.

HOW DO YOU WEAR A SHIRT WAIST?

We frequently hear women say they will dress in a few minutes, for they are only going to slip into a shirtwaist, says a well-known fashion writer. Well, many do slip into them, and every one that sees them is aware of the fact. But the woman who is neat and stylish in a shirtwaist will tell you that it is not quickly put on. A properly adjusted shirtwaist is first carefully and firmly pinned down on either side of the back, and at the sides, just in front of the under arm seam, while the fullness in front, whether belted or secured by tape, must be neatly arranged. All this takes time, and your work will count for naught, however, if the skirt and shirtwaist are not fastened together at the back and the outside belt put on with care. Hundreds of women must dress day after day without ever looking at their backs. Pity we cannot "see ourselves as others see us!"

BRIDES AND ORANGE BLOSSOMS.

The use of orange flowers at weddings was introduced into England by Queen Victoria on her marriage. Like most feminine fashions, this one came from France, which, in turn, had derived it from Spain. According to an old legend, the Moors introduced the orange tree into Spain, and for a long time the only tree was possessed by the king. Desiring to present an orange tree to his sovereign, the French ambassador offered the royal gardener a large sum for a cutting, but the bribe was refused. The gardener's daughter had a lover whom poverty prevented her marrying. To obtain the necessary dowry she secretly cut off and sold a slip of the orange tree to the ambassador. On her marriage, in recognition of her debt to the plant which had brought about the happy event, she wore a wreath of orange blossoms, and thus originated the custom.

HATS FOR WARM WEATHER.

A picturesque hat is of white rustic straw, the brim lined with gauged white tulle and strapped up with bands of ecru batiste embroidery. The crown is formed of pink and blue forget-me-nots, which droop over at the back, while a bow of lace and a knot of black velvet fall onto the hair behind.

A gay hat of raspberry red coarse satin straw is wreathed round with velvet geraniums, beautifully shaded of country, that the entire country joins in these celebrations. Other republics before the establishment of our own lasted but a time and were destroyed partly by their own inherent weakness, partly by the assaults of outside invasion. Foreign critics have said our fate would be the same.

CENTERVILLE'S DEMONSTRATION.

"Our nation is founded on sound morality, personal honesty and a profound reverence for the Christian religion. Time has but strengthened, not impaired our institutions. With our great wealth and wonderful progress we have not as a nation, grown selfish or arrogant.

"When, but a few short weeks ago, we lowered our flag on Cuban soil, and our representatives steamed away to the north from Havana harbor amid the riotous joy and tearful gratitude of a free and an unshackled people, then American citizens walked with a prouder step at this consummation of Freedom's teachings.

"Where in all history is there a parallel? Other nations have gone to war to oppress, to dismember and divide; we have spent millions of money and given the priceless blood of our bravest sons to bring freedom to a broken and despairing people and seek no recompense ask no reward, for it was done in liberty's cause, in freedom's holy name.

"In every stormy period of our history we have had a master hand at the helm. Whether it was Washington, towering above the gloom and tears of the Revolution, or Lincoln with divine fortitude guiding the Ship of State during the Civil War, or McKinley, patient and wise, awaiting amid the clamors of the country for war, until he was ready to strike with relentless determination and crushing effect.

"To-day we are no less fortunate. Our nation's chief is the product of the best American manhood. He is dealing with the mighty questions; of the trust regulation on a basis just to them and to the people; of the Philippines so that they may be fitted eventually for government after the manner of the really free nations."

LADIES' TOURNAMENT.

Miss Emma Blacow won against Miss Bessie Hudson; score 6-4, 7-5.

HORRIBLES' PROCESSION.

The Horribles' procession in wich the grotesque was sought, while scarcely as brilliant as the parade in the morning, was a complete success.

The queen of the Horribles was Miss E. J. Bailey of Niles. She led the procession, and was drawn by a white horse and a jackass, with a tiger in the way of a dummy, attached behind.

Twelve masqueraders who performed the hoop and ribbon dance, kept the visitors entertained throughout the parade.

J. W. Henderson and wife gave an example of darkey life in the south.

F. W. Holmes as the Indian chief and leader of the Horribles, was considered very effective.

There were over one hundred masqueraders in line. The performance of the Horribles closed with speeches and dancing on the platform erected in the heart of the town.

F. G. Hawes was the grand marshal. His aides were John Santos and M. Francis.

FIRE WORKS.

At 8 o'clock M. Josephs, L. Birsocher and F. T. Dusterberry, the committee on fireworks, superintended the explosion of $300 worth of pyrotechnics to the intense edification of the small boy, and the delight of the assembled spectators.

GRAND BALL.

After the day's festivities had drawn to a close, the Town Hall was thrown open to the public, and many couples crowded the floor until the small hours of the morning.

The officers of the day were as follows:

FASHIONS FOR THE WOMEN

from white just tipped with roses up to a rich salmon pink and glowing crimson. The brim was turned up sharply behind with a large bow of cerise velvet, while the brim, which was wide and curved downward over the face in front was lined with narrow frills of Valenciennes lace.

Many of the hat brims this year are lined with these lace frills or chiffon ruches, especially the big white Yeddah, or Tuscan straws, which have rows of bebe black ribbon alternating with frillings of black lace. An enormous Tuscan straw had the brim lined with flutings of black and white gauze ribbon, an enormous black and white ostrich plume underneath passing round from front to back. The outside was ornamented simply by a twist of black velvet.

A serviceable automobile hat that is also sightly is of coarse straw, with a trimming of soft taffeta sash ribbon. At the back of the brim is attached a silken bag that completely covers the hair and keeps it from dust, long streamers of silk being twisted round the throat for the same purpose. By a clever arrangement of hooks and eyes the bags and the streamers are detachable, a useful contrivance for those who are to pay a call or attend an afternoon party.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

THE SUMMER AUDIENCE.

A theater audience looks vastly different at this season of the year from what it did a few weeks ago. At one of the large theaters in New York on Monday evening fully two-thirds of the women wore shirt-waists, and there was no one in elaborate evening dress. To be sure, most of the shirt-waists were white, and some of them were tucked a good deal, or embroidered, but they were, without evasion, shirtwaists.

HEALTHY AND WISE.

The majority of people do not sufficiently realize the importance of fruit as an article of daily diet. If you want to be really healthy, eat fruit for breakfast; eat fruit for luncheon; avoid pastry; shun muffins and crumpets and buttered toast; eat brown bread; decline potatoes if they are served more than once a day; do not drink tea or coffee; walk four miles every day; take a bath every day; wash the face every night in warm water, and sleep eight hours. You will never need nerve medicine if you adhere to these rules.

AFTER DINNER COFFEE SPOONS.

A little spoon for persons who like dainty things of the kind is an after-dinner coffee spoon in silver gilt, very simple, with a little twist in the lower part of the handle, and from there plain to the top, where there is a small thistle. The lower part of the thistle is of silver gilt; the upper part is an amethyst.

THE FAMILY LINEN.

The well regulated linen closet should have its napkins and cloths arranged in sets, matching in quality and design. It is a good idea to arrange the napkins folded on the folded cloth and tie them in a flat package with a ribbon fastening around from all sides. Care should be taken that household linen, not only napery, but towels and bed linen, is rotated in service. Sometimes the bottom of the pile of towels, sheets or pillow-cases, is not touched for months, the upper pieces of the piles being conveniently taken off constantly and replaced by themselves as they come from the weekly laundering. It will be found much more economical to take them in turn, as in this way they wear alike and much longer if in constant use.

HOW TO WASH LACE.

First of all, don't use ammonia, and don't rub soap on the lace itself. Dissolve soap jelly in warm water, in which you can comfortably bear your hand—a heaped tablespoonful to a gallon—and half a teaspoonful of borax; put the lace into it, and let it soak about ten minutes. Souse and squeeze it till clean; rinse first in warm water and then in cold. Squeeze as dry as you can, and iron while still wet on a board covered with three or four thicknesses of flannel and one of muslin.

Lay the lace on the board right side downwards, and pull into shape. Spread a piece of muslin over and iron with a moderately hot flat till the lace is about half dry. Take away the top muslin and finish ironing, pressing well to throw up the pattern.

For the first two washings it will probably keep its color all right, but after that dip it into a weak solution of tea after the final rinsing, then squeeze and iron as before. If hung out to dry, it would probably "run" and look patchy when ironed.

Ironing when still wet gives just the necessary stiffness, so no starch is needed.

GOIN' INTO SOCIETY.

A belated traveler, who was compelled to stay all night in a backwoods cabin in Arkansas, says that soon after the frugal supper of "sody biskits" and side meat swimming in grease, had been eaten, a tall, gaunt youth of about eighteen and a gaunt girl of seventeen, both barefooted, took their hats from wooden pegs in the wall and prepared to go out, whereupon their mother, taking her pipe from between her yellow teeth, said reprovingly: "Go 'long an' wash your feet, Levi, you and Looly, both. Hain't you 'shamed to go off to an evenin' party without washin' your feet?" They obeyed, but as Levi took the wash pan from the bench by the door, he said with a grumble: "I'd about as soon stay home from a party as to have to fix up for hit."

ONE WOMAN'S LOT.

"Poor woman! She works hard all day and then she's up nearly all night with the babies."

"What's the matter with her husband? Why doesn't he help her?"

"Oh! he puts in all his time agitating for an eight-hour day for the working man."—Philadelphia Press.

A MATRIMONIAL TRUST.

"I have a most perfect trust in you," confided the wife to her husband.

"Well," answered he, "you go right over to New Jersey and incorporate it. There's no use running any risks about these things."—Detroit Free Press.

IMPORTANT

NOTICE TO VOTERS

REGISTRATION

Office of the County Clerk, Alameda County, Cal.

NOTICE IS HEREBY given that in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 53 Statutes of 1899, all voters of Alameda County must apply for re-registration in order to be able to vote at the General Election in November, as every name on Great Register was cancelled January 1st, 1902.

Owing to the fact that there is no provision of law providing assistance for the Clerk to register voters, IT IS IMPORTANT THAT VOTERS SHOULD APPLY FOR REGISTRATION AT ONCE IN ORDER TO EXPEDITE THE WORK.

Such re-registration began on the 1st day of January, and will be in progress at all times until forty days preceding the next election in November.

Sec. 1097. No person's name must be entered by the Clerk, unless:

1. Upon the production and filing of a certified copy of the judgment of the Superior Court directing such entry to be made.

2. If a naturalized citizen, upon the production of his certificate of naturalization, which certificate must be issued ninety days prior to the succeeding election, or upon his affidavit that it is lost out of his possession, which affidavit must state the place of his nativity and the time and place of his naturalization, together with his affidavit that he has resided in the United States for five years, and in this State for one year next preceding the time of application, and that he would be an elector of the county at the next succeeding election; provided, however, if such naturalized citizen shall have been previously registered as a qualified elector in any of the counties, or cities and counties of this State, his name must be entered by the Clerk unless he produces a certificate of such registration, issued by the party authorized by law to issue such certificate, which certificate shall be prima facie evidence of his naturalization.

3. If born in a foreign country, upon his affidavit that he became a citizen of the United States by virtue of the naturalization of his father while he was residing in the United States, and under the age of twenty-one years, and that he is or would be an elector of the county at the next ensuing election.

4. In other cases, upon the affidavit of the party that he is or will be an elector of the county at the next succeeding election.

Further notice is hereby given that Affidavits of Registration must be sworn to before the County Clerk or his deputies, and that they can not, owing to the provisions of the new Registration Law, be sworn to before any other officer.

The office of the County Clerk will be, until further notice, open for registration from Nine A. M. until Five P. M. each day.

SUMMER FABRICS LIKE FILMY FOAM.

White Taffeta Coat With Cape Sleeves.

Flower frocks are among the latest summer novelties, and for dances and dinners at smart watering places this garden creation will take the lead.

One may choose for such gown whatever flower one happens to fancy, though it goes without saying that the loveliest of these are ornamented with pretty garden blooms.

Sweet peas lead themselves admirably to this fad, and the fact that they grow in such a variety of tints makes them all the more suited to flower creations. The pale lavenders, deep blues, yellows and whites are all charming when such tints are becoming to the wearer, yet nothing is so altogether fresh and dainty as the pale pink shade of this old-fashioned garden blossom.

The gown represented in the photograph is as quaint and pretty as its design, and herein has the originator shown her appreciation of the flower harmony.

When unpretentious sweet peas are used there should be neither elaborate material nor intricate patterns for a background. In this instance filmy pink mousseline de soie, showing a small polka dot, makes a perfect gown fabric, on which the delicate petals seem to have been blown hither and thither by a careless wind.

A plain skirt of the dotted mousseline is dropped over a foundation of pink chiffon and taffeta, and from hem almost to waist is a series of overlapping flounces of the dotted fabric. These are plainly hemmed at the bottom and sewn with pale pink sweet peas, sometimes the entire flower being used and again only the larger petal falling carelessly among the soft folds.

The skirt trains bewitchingly, and the whole effect is girlish, graceful and lovely. To avoid a bunchy appearance about the hips, the skirt is left quite plain from waist to perhaps 12 inches below, a few stray petals being the only ornamentation on this part of the gown.

Equally quaint is the slightly decollete corsage, which is gathered high across the bust, the folds being drawn in softly at the waist, where they are concealed beneath a crushed sash of pink liberty satin. A row of the sweet peas outlines the square decolletage and more of the same flowers are gracefully scattered over the blouse part.

Novelty in Sleeve Design.

The sleeves of this frock are very curious. Coming up high over the shoulders, the dotted mousseline is arranged in close folds edge and trimmed with flower petals. Then, from a point about three inches below, the top of the arm is set on an open drapery which falls in two deep points, one on the outside and the other on the inside of the arm.

This sleeve portion is made without a lining, and its airy folds are bordered with a scattering of flower petals. It is decidedly becoming to one who possesses a prettily rounded arm, and the glimpse one gets of its fascinating satiny texture half veiled by the pale pink mousseline is one of the most charming features of the gown.

The long modish sash which might accompany this gown would be made of wide pink liberty satin ribbon, with its ends showing a fluttering mass of pink sweet peas and a delicate border of them ornamenting both sides almost to the waist, where a sash would be tied in a simple knot.

Besides the sweet pea gown, there are lovely ones of roses, brilliant ones showing large silky poppy petals and buttercup frocks whose pale yellow tint is fresh and dainty besides being out of the ordinary. Some of these flower creations are made of plain chiffon, shirred about the hips to produce a pointed yoke effect and with more shirrings following the same lines to give the appearance of puffs instead of flounces.

A more bouffant arrangement about the bottom of the skirt may be used with such a frock and the flowers may be scattered here in greater profusion.

There are many designs one might follow in making a flower frock, but the thing to bear in mind is simplicity in line. Nothing can surpass the much ruffled one for youthfulness and general prettiness.

Evening gowns More Elaborate.

Much more elaborate is the evening gown shown, which was worn by Mrs. John P. Ladin, a New York society woman whose costumes are always notable among the brilliant galaxy at the opera, where she has a box each season. This presents a very different interpretation of lines and fabrics in vogue.

Pale blue crepe meteore forms the skirt, which is draped over a foundation of taffeta, showing a finish at the bottom of many blue chiffon frills.

The blue crepe is thickly spangled with tiny silver paillettes and bands of beautiful lace applique are arranged in perpendicular lines. As these lace bands reach the bottom of the skirt they fuse themselves among the scroll like pattern of lace which forms a deep band about the bottom. The lower edge of this applique is trimmed with an accordion plaited flounce of blue spotted net, which has four rows of baby ribbon at the foot.

The corsage, with its very low, square neck, is a mass of lace incrustation, showing bright silver spangles here and there. Lace caps form the sleeves and a band of black velvet ribbon crosses over each shoulder.

With the handsome gown is worn a neck ruche and muff, fashioned of pale blue ribbons and real Valenciennes lace edging. About the shoulders the lace and ribbon are gathered into a becoming ruche, while at the front two long sashes fall to the bottom of the skirt. These, too, are made in lace trimmed ribbon, and at the end of each is a pretty pompadour circlet of pale pink roses. The same dainty and effective wreaths ornament the muff, where they are tied with a huge bow of pale blue ribbon.

The neck ruche, too, displays a dash of pink, formed by tiny circlets of roses.

With such a handsome gown jewels are quite appropriate, and the wearer adorned her dusky hair with three diamond sunbursts, arranged in a tiara effect, while a collier and necklace of pearls clasped her white throat.

For automobiling and driving there is nothing so popular now as silk coats, and these are seen in black and white taffeta, as well as pongee. Of all the lengths offered the three-quarter may be considered most in vogue, probably because it is less generally becoming than either the very short or the very long.

The one here depicted is of this fashionable length and is made of white taffeta. The upper portion presents a cape effect, with a broadly turned back collar solidly incrusted with lace and embroidery. This collar tapers at the waist, where each side is finished with a stole of shirred chiffon, the one at the left being tied with numberless loops of narrow black silk cords with tasselled ends.

What Tobacco Has Done.

Modern civilization would not be what it is if it were not for tobacco is the opinion of an English scientist. Modern civilization, he maintains, did not begin until tobacco was introduced into the Old World, and he infers that it would not have begun then if tobacco had not been introduced.

"The golden age of England," he says, "was the era of tobacco; the giants of literature and politics were inspired by the smoke of tobacco and one may truthfully say that the Empire of Great Britain was founded in the midst of smoke."

"There may be some truth in this," says a caustic critic, "but what about the Boers, who are among the greatest smokers in the world."

THE LUXURY OF MODERN DRESSING.

"Luxury on the increase? I would not like to make that statement, but I will say this: I can carry a stock of goods today with easy confidence that would have ruined me 10 years ago. A thousand-dollar sale doesn't count for much now, but then it scarcely came to me once in a year. I find that people want the best, and all the maker has to do is surpass his former best and raise his price. It all goes."

And this leader among merchants only voices the fact as verified by all his brothers,—it looks as though luxury were on the increase.

The bootmaker, the hatter, the tailor and the costumer all tell a marvelous tale of big bills and gorgeous supplies. Men and women are about even in their lavish expenditure, and the limit is reached in spending only when the income has been stretched to its utmost.

"Take the average 'swell' of today, man and woman, and compare their requirements and expenditures for dress only, and you find that they foot up to about the same sum," said the head of a big furnishing establishment. "There's the woman's opera cloak. It's worth $2,000, and it's balanced by the man's automobile coat, made of walrus hide and fur-lined. Furs! I placed a royal Russian sable coat, costing $20,000, last winter in New York, and the man's wife ordered a coat sable-lined for him the next day at exactly the same figure.

"I often hear indulgence in luxury laid at woman's door, but in dress I think our modern man is her match. She has wraps for all her occasions, social, sporting or traveling, but so has he, and his costs more in the long run, for he does more things—hunts, yachts, as well as rides more—and then a lot of men carry six overcoats and wear them according to the thermometer.

"Women run ahead a little in the cost of their dress costumes. There are hundreds of women who won't wear a dress a fourth time in public, and they have to make arrangements with buyers and keep selling off their used gowns to make room for the new. I know of one outfit of 27 evening costumes that cost $14,000. But I also know of men who have linen and underwear, as well as shoes, ties and stud sets, to go with every suit, and who have regular progressive orders for renewal of supplies from their tailors. The suits come and go and all the accessories with them, except the jewelry—that accumulates. A thousand dollars for two pearl studs! It isn't only the ladies who can spend the money.

"The fact is, women don't begin to spend the money for jewelry that men do, but they own it in the end all right.

"When it comes to underwear the women take the lead again. Real lace, nainsook, hand embroidery of crests and monograms, ribbons, frills, silk or silk gauze and woven silk, lisle thread, woman's invention and woman's love of the dainty have made it an easy thing for thousands to slip away in lingerie for the fair sex—there is no end to it; whereas a man must find his limit, though he has as lavish a chance for selection as the money-loving producer can invent.

"Luxury in dressing depends upon just one thing—easy money. If the people have the price, comfort and beauty can coax it out of 'em." Is the pithy expression of a big manufacturer of furnishings.

"If we have good times, the people spend, and they keep right on, faster and faster, until when things lighten up again they can't cut down quick enough, and then there is trouble.

"I've watched these things for a lifetime, and I am prepared to say that I never saw such love of elegance displayed before as there is now, nor reaching so far down.

"I don't know how they do it, but the two-dollar-a-day man runs a family which dresses better than their grandparents ever dreamed of doing, even when they 'ran the meeting.'

"Luxurious! I believe everybody would be luxurious if he could, and that it's a duty of the wealthy to be so. They keep the rest of us busy. They pay someone to do everything for them in life but eat and play, and when we see how nice that is, we want to be luxurious, too, and keep right on working to reach that goal."

The following was gathered from the account-books of a man and his wife in New York who are among the so-called lucky class who "have everything":

If personal expenses were considered, what would be the grand total for horses, yachts, automobiles, coaches, wines, cigars and sporting paraphernalia in general?

Pink Sweet Pea Gown Worn By Miss Grace George In "Frou Frou".

Handsome Blue Crepe Meteore Dress Spangled With Silver.

A CONVENIENT TRAVELING BAG FOR EUROPEAN TRIPS.

"I can understand the big pile of luggage that returning tourists bring with them, but how women, or men either, not novices at travel can load themselves up with clothing to take abroad I don't see." These were the words of one of New York's athletic maidens as she stood upon a lately departed steamer and watched the cabin baggage being run aboard.

"Do you see that bag?" she asked, pointing to a straw telescope, handsomely bound with pigskin and fastened by two broad straps, with padlock buckles in gilt. "That is my trunk. I call it 'the lamp,' for no matter what I want I find it by its agency. Aladdin had not a better servant. I have traveled the Continent over, much of it afoot, and after six years of experience I have found that the things which bother a traveler are not those he has left behind, but those that he has with him. So I had two of these telescopes made, weighing two pounds apiece.

"In one I put my steamer outfit, in the other my land clothing. The steamer things I store with the ship's company when I land until I sail again, and the other bag, which during the voyage has been tucked away in my cabin, I take with me.

"For traveling this summer I have started with three new linen shirtwaists—a dark blue, with white stitching; a gray, with white dots, and a white. I have half a dozen low turnover collars and three silk ties, black, blue and red. I have a walking skirt of gray cravenette, lightweight and very chic.

"When a shirtwaist is soiled I have it washed at once. Anywhere in Europe you can hand your little laundry-bag to the chambermaid at night and find its contents fresh and clean in your room after breakfast next day. When a tie looks shabby I leave it behind me and buy a new one. If my skirt gets damaged I do the same, but I never have had to renew my walking skirt. I wear a trimmed sailor hat and white chiffon veils. They wash beautifully, and, pinned out tightly upon a bed, will dry into newness in ten minutes.

"This year I have a green veil, too, but it doesn't add to the bulk of my luggage. I have a pair of heavy walking shoes and a lovely pair of slippers.

"Of course, there are occasions when dress is necessary, so this year I have a dark blue taffeta dress, all tucks, and a white lace yoke and undersleeves, so that, at a pinch, I could even dine in style in the city of elbow bones.

"Underclothing is easily managed. I have three of everything, and it is all of fine gauze, not nainsook. I have one white silk underskirt, and one pearl gray percaline short skirt to wear under my walking skirt when I am on the tramp.

"I carry one small box with an extra set of studs and buttons, and a set of lace for neck and sleeves when I want to be in full dress, and with my handkerchiefs, one dozen plain and three fancy ones, I think my equipment complete.

"I save more than I spend in laundry by not checking my baggage, and I never have to wait for my fresh clothes at a hotel until the express people choose to deliver my trunks. My whole outfit does not weigh 12 pounds as it lies there, and I need have only five minutes to pack at any time.

"Yes, I always carry or wear a jacket, but that is on my back or on my arm, and doesn't count in the inventory of the 'camp.'

"For the steamer I always take warm things. If it is hot I borrow from my traveling bag and wear a linen shirtwaist, but usually a flannel waist, and very heavy walking skirt, with equestrian tights for extra warmth. I have a thick peajacket and a golf cape, and, of course, my rug and a crush felt hat.

"There, that is the sum total of my baggage," she concluded, "and I find, as I move around the Continent, that I am as well dressed as the other women I meet and my clothes look fresher; they don't get crushed. I usually take old handkerchiefs and underclothing for ship use and throw them away as I use them, and on the home trip the things I have traveled with are usually ready to be cast to the waves or mended and given to the steerage passengers. There is always want among them."

"But what about bringing new clothes back with you?" was asked this compact young woman.

"Oh, I always have everything sent to my hotel at the port town C. O. D., instruct the landlord just what he is to pay for, and then when I arrive I buy a hamper, put in my bundles and sail next day.

"There can be no question that my way is the best way, but there are women who would want a change of costume five times a day if they were living in solitary confinement. They live to dress, and, in my opinion, are the only women to go to Europe with big trunks."
